The Baby Will Fly.
Sarnoff Sees Ahead.
Gangs Move on New York.
No Bets Against Jones.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE INTERESTING Lindbergh baby, to spend the hot weather at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morrow in Maine, will fly there with his father and mother, according to report.

A flying baby only a few weeks old seems strange to us. Ten years hence babies in an airplane will be no more exciting than babies in street cars or railroad trains.

The Lindbergh baby will find it hard to realize that human beings once crawled over the surface of the earth or water, at a "snail's pace" at 60 miles an hour.

DAVID SARNOFF, president of the Radio Corporation of America, like all successful men, has imagination as well as executive capacity. He says:

"Television, providing a theater for every home although the stage may be only a cabinet, and a curtain the screen, is, I believe, the distinct promise of the new era of electrical entertainment."

MR. SARNOFF sees in the latest gift of science to the human race the promise of "a new culture." Ten million homes in the United States now "draw nightly upon the programs of the air for the family entertainment."

Mr. Sarnoff, young and remarkably able, believes that this generation will see the greatest actors, orators, clergymen and singers moving and hear their voices in their homes. That is modern magic.

NEW YORK that recently became the money center of the world, now, to its disgust, seems destined to be the crime center of the United States.

Racketeers, gunmen, and other experts, driven out of Chicago by police energy, are alleged to be gathering in the bigger, richer city. Robberies of various kinds, from banks to delicatessen stores, a bomb explosion in the Fifth avenue district, business and trade union rackets of all kinds testify to the energy with which the alleged Chicago invaders do their work.

POLICE SAY their difficulties are increased by the unwillingness of citizens to tell what they know. Business men submit to racketeering to avoid bombing.

A New Yorker robbed of $4,000 refused to identify the men that held him up, when they stood before him. He said:

"I never saw them."

He did not want them, or their friends, to shoot him later.

BOBBY JONES has taught an anti-gambling lesson to Lloyds, the great British insurance company. At the beginning of this golf season Lloyds, which takes all kinds of wagers, bet 50 to 1 that Bobby Jones would not win the four great golf championships in succession. Now he has won three of them, and those that bet against him, seeking to insure themselves against loss, request Lloyds to bet that Jones will not win his fourth match.

Lloyds says:

"No. It will cost you one thousand pounds to get a thousand pounds insurance against Jones' victory."

Which means that the victory is considered certain.

WILLIAM GIBBS McADOO, writing his memoirs, will have plenty to tell, if he writes all he knows about war, politics, railroads, finance, and the dollar a year "patrioteers."

Most important in all his career is the fact that, in the face of heavy odds, fighting jealous corporations and political machines, he managed to build two tunnels connecting Manhattan Island with the Continent.

That will remain his important work, as the Panama Canal will remain Theodore Roosevelt's important work.

PRESIDENT HOOVER will let the Farm Board decide on additional wheat purchases to bolster prices. Senator Capper wants the board to buy 100,000,000 bushels more.

Mr. Legge and the other members tell the farmer to plant less wheat and get a better price.

Another member, Mr. McKelvie, asks bakers to charge less for bread at retail, increase consumption and the demand for wheat.

The problem is difficult. Whatever you suggest, you offend somebody.

PROFESSOR PASSEY, British, of Leeds University, discovers that mustard gas prevents cancer. It is hailed as "the first discovery of a true anti-carcinogenic agent."

Mice, used in the experiment, may save the lives of many humans.

HERR HOLITSCHER, German author, has seen us, and reports to his countrymen that Colonel Lindbergh and Will Rogers are the two most typical Americans of today.

He says:

"The savings bank book constitutes the crowning point of an American's life work."

And our greatest amusement, he finds, is evading the prohibition law.

Some American will go to Germany and say that a large "stein" of beer is the German's highest ambition, and then the foolish account will be even.

SECRET PACT EVOKES NEW PROTEST

McKellar, Reopening Fight In Senate, Declares U. S. Navy Far Below England's

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A new protest against the Hoover administration's action in keeping secret all records of the London naval conference was voiced in the Senate this afternoon by Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, in resuming the opposition's attack on the arms limitation treaty.

He said the secret negotiations between Great Britain, Japan and the United States had caused so much misunderstanding in London that France and Italy refused to sign the treaty. He further charged that the secrecy surrounding the conference had nearly provoked a war between France and Italy.

The Tennesseean, who has prepared two reservations to the treaty, protested too that the United States had been traded out of her position as the world's first sea power. He expressed doubt whether the American Navy now is the equal of the Japanese.

ROUNDS UP 60 SENATORS

Before McKellar began his attack on the treaty, the administration rounded up 60 senators for the initial quorum call. This

SEEK LOOPHOLE FOR DOG RACES

Attorney Joseph H. Reich, counsel for the Guyasuta Kennel Club, declared today that he may launch a new legal fight to halt county authorities from interfering with the operation of the dog-racing track along Freeport road, above Aspinwall.

His announcement followed withdrawal of the kennel club's petition for an injunction yesterday.

It became known today that Judge Frank P. Patterson, before whom the petition had been filed yesterday, had offered to permit the kennel club to operate the track if the officials would discontinue selling tickets giving the patrons an "interest in purses of winning dogs."

Judge Patterson, it was said, held that this temporary sale of an interest in the purses to the patrons was an evasion of the gambling law. He pointed out that the Supreme Court has held that the word "gambling" includes anything that induces men to risk money.

Following this declaration, the kennel club officials announced that they would withdraw the petition for an injunction.

The track was closed last night.

DAWN CHEERS TREE SITTERS

Pittsburgh's endurance nesters spent last night in the tops of two trees in the yard of Mrs. Mary Gravely, of 631 Sickles street, Brushton, and welcomed daybreak this morning with shivers and chattering of teeth.

They are Lawrence Gravely, 11; his cousin, Samuel King, 14, and his brothers, James, 14, and Robert Gravely, 10, Negroes.

At noon the sitters dined on sandwiches and lemonade. They are whiling the hours by reading exploits of "The Dreadnaught Boys."

At 4 p. m. yesterday they climbed to platforms built in the trees, and announced to a wondering world that they would remain there until next Monday.

They took plenty of blankets, water and some bread.

This morning Ruth Gravely, sister of three of the nesters, took their orders for breakfast, which consisted of many things, notably hot coffee, and lots of it.

Robert came down through the

HERSHMAN KIN WILLED BULK OF MILLIONS

Personal Property Valued at $4,500,000, Realty Large; Friends, Charity Share

Mrs. Belle C. Hershman, widow, and three adopted children are named principal beneficiaries in the will of Col. Oliver S. Hershman, former Pittsburgh newspaper publisher, filed for probate today, disposing of personal property valued at $4,500,000 and real estate of unestimated worth.

Col. Hershman's realty holdings, including the Davis theater, his Bellefield avenue residence and property in California and at Allenhurst, N. J., will bring the total to several millions more, it is believed.

$75,000 CHARITIES

Numerous relatives and personal friends are remembered with substantial bequests.

The executors are instructed to distribute $75,000 among charities of their selection and $5,000 among household servants.

In a codicil dated December 8, 1927, the Rev. Carl A. Stein, pastor of Grace Reformed Church, Bellefield, is given $5,000. Margaret Pyle, borough clerk of Allenhurst, N. J., where Col. Hershman spent part of his summers, receives $5,000.

CANCELS $25,000 DEBT

The codicil also directs that a debt of $25,000 owed Col. Hershman by Lawrence A. Peach, of New York, be canceled if not paid at the time of the former's death.

The original will bore the date of Octobe 22, 1926.

These bequests are set forth: Homer Oliver Williams, $10,000; Mrs. Morgan J. Thomas, a cousin, $5,000; Gladys Dravo, cousin, $5,000; Ida Abel, cousin, $5,000; H. Oliver Will, son of Charles Will, $2,500; Oliver Hershman Havens, $2,500; Elizabeth Boyd, a

PINCHOT RULING SET AUGUST 19

Acting Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer, of the State Supreme Court, today announced the hearing on Francis Shunk Brown's appeal to throw out the vote of Luzerne County, which would deprive Gifford Pinchot of the Republican nomination for governor, had been set back from August 8 to August 19.

Justice Frazer declared the change was made because Justice William I. Schaffer who is to sit on the case will not return from Europe until August 16.

The date originally was set for September 29 and changed by Justice Frazer about a week ago to August 8.

Lindbergh May Take Baby On Plane Flight Soon

NEW YORK, July 16.—If Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh go to Maine for the summer by plane, Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., will fly with them. It is possible their plans may be changed and the family go by train.

The most-talked-of baby in the world will not leave for his grandparents' summer home this week, as had been reported. The press of business makes Col. Lindbergh's presence in the city for a time imperative.

It would not be the first time that the famous aviator has carried a baby as his passenger in his plane. Back in his early flying days more than one infant traveler, accompanied by parents, went up with him.

The majority of them were under a year old, but none of them suffered any ill effects from the experience. Without exception, every one of them, after curiously gazing about at the wings of the plane, listened interestedly to the whirr of the machinery and fell asleep to the lullaby of the propeller.

Lindbergh is credited with having more practical knowledge of the effect of aviation travel upon babies than any one else in the world—even the most prominent baby specialists in New York.

When Dr. Charles Gilmore Kerley was consulted yesterday he replied that this is the first time such a problem had been presented to him. Amid the din of crying infants waiting in his office, he answered cautiously that he

13 HELD IN RAID ON LOTTERY

Trapped in a surprise raid by police, 13 men were arrested today in the building at 22½ Diamond street, downtown, said to be the headquarters of a large clearing house numbers lottery.

The swoop was made on a "tip-off" furnished by former heads of a numbers lottery resenting the invasion of North Side "numbers writers" into the downtown ward.

During the raid, excitement reigned in the district. A crowd of curious spectators milled around the entrance of the building, to watch the 13 men marched into a police patrol.

PARACHUTES SAVE THREE AIRMEN

Flight to Buenos Aires From New York Ends in Georgia When 'Gas' Tanks Go Dry

International News Service.

BOSTWICK, Ga., July 16.—Hopelessly lost and their supply of gasoline exhausted, the crew of the Buenos Aires-bound K of New Haven leaped in parachutes to safety today and saw their monoplane plunge into a field about one mile from here.

The plane was completely demolished. Randy Enslow, chief pilot, incurred a severely bruised arm in landing, but Garland Peed and Jimmy Garland, assistant pilots, landed unscathed.

The fliers, who left Roosevelt Field, New York, at 4:24 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) yesterday on a projected non-stop refueling flight to Buenos Aires, were lost for several hours before the gasoline supply became exhausted and they were forced to leap to the ground.

LOST BEARINGS

After disentangling themselves from their parachutes, the trio made their way into Bostwick. They reported they had become lost over Spartanburg, S. C., early this morning, and had circled the city nearly two hours, dropping flares and seeking a break in the low-hanging clouds to permit a safe landing.

Continuing their flight southward, they said they were attempting to discover their bearings over Georgia when daybreak came and their gasoline supply ran out.

They were unable to discover a

U. S. Self Government Success, Says Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 16.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Because the rule of eternal vigilance requires us to strive to make our government better, we should not conclude that it is not already good. If anyone will examine the course of federal legislation for the past decade surprisingly little will be found that is distinctly bad, and most of that is chiefly because of the expense involved. Oftentimes the House or the Senate has come to a wrong decision which further deliberation has corrected before final enactment. Sometimes the veto power of the President has saved the situation.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

On occasion the power to investigate has been criticized. But even those explorations, by revealing the truth or falsity of accusations, have often been most salutary. If too little thought has been given to co-operation with the service which those responsible for the conduct of business are trying to render, scrupulous care has been exercised in efforts to promote the welfare of the great body of the people.

The general level of ability and character of the holders of federal office is remarkably high. The people are in control of their own affairs. Self government is a success. The United States is worthy of the best we can give it.

PUBLISHER DISCLOSES $15,000 M'CORMICK CONTRIBUTION

ONLY $2,500 LISTED, NYE QUIZ TOLD

Nominee's Brother-in-Law Says $10,000 'Arrived Late;' Never Returned

CHICAGO, July 16.—(AP.)—Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune and brother-in-law of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, told the Senate Campaign Funds Committee today that he had given $15,000 in support of her senatorial campaign.

Of this only $2,500 had been included in the expenditures of $327,000 so far accounted for as her campaign expenses.

Col. McCormick said his $15,000 included a check for $10,000 sent to Mrs. McCormick April 1, a week before the primary. He declared Mrs. McCormick had informed him this check arrived too late for use in the campaign, but the money was not returned.

The publisher at first included another contribution of $2,000 in his testimony regarding the senatorial campaign, but later corrected himself by saying that sum was given to her campaign for Congressman-at-large.

GAVE $12,500 DIRECTLY

McCormick said he gave $12,500 directly to Mrs. McCormick and the other $2,500 to the Ruth Hanna McCormick volunteers. This later donation was included in Mrs. McCormick's campaign reports.

Bernard W. Snow, chairman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee, said the Republican organization primary campaign in the county cost between $130,000 and $140,000. The money was raised by assessing the various county candidates and by holding a banquet, where tickets cost $100 a plate. The dinner netted $52,500, Snow declared.

Snow said he solicited no senatorial candidates for funds and received none. He acknowledged marking sample ballots in endorsement of Mrs. McCormick in all but two of the 50 Chicago wards.

HELD IT WISE MOVE

He asserted that he assumed the responsibility of endorsing Mrs. McCormick because he thought it would be the wise thing to do, in view of public sentiment in her favor.

Senator Nye, chairman of the committee, read a letter from George F. Harding, county treasurer, who told of soliciting Mrs. McCormick for a donation to the county campaign fund. Harding said she refused to contribute, and declared she would rather be defeated, than run the risk of being denied a seat in the Senate.

Mrs. McCormick, cross-examining Snow, asked him his opinion regarding published reports that the city hall machine had handed her the senatorial nomination on a platter.

ALSO HELPED TICKET

Snow said his indorsement of Mrs. McCormick undoubtedly gave her some votes, but also aided the county ticket.

Mrs. McCormick then asked him if she had ever sought his support, to which he replied she had not.

Charles V. Barnett, county political leader, identified his political affiliations by saying he was connected with all the county groups which opposed Senator Deneen. He said the old "city hall group" no longer existed, with numerous independent factions having taken its place.

Chicago to Pay Teachers' Salaries

CHICAGO, July 16.—(AP.)—On vacation for three weeks and still without their June salaries, Chicago's 13,000 school teachers have found encouragement in the announcement that almost half of the money for their pay will be available in a day or so.

The money, amounting to $2,567,715, is the city school board's share of the state school fund. County Treasurer Harding said that the fund would be turned over as soon as necessary book work was done.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 16.—(AP.)—Citizens of Wheeling planned action today with rumors of impending warfare between rival liquor gangs.

duced the $1,365 necessary for their release in a bulky roll of bank notes.

According to reports today, the informants who tipped off police were former operators of a lottery at 22½ Diamond street, who were forced to suspend operations when players hit the pool for a total of $48,000 in one day. The heads of the lottery are said to have paid part of that sum, then closed down while they attempted to raise the balance of the cash.

Meanwhile, it is said, numbers writers from the North Side moved into the building and the former operators are reported to have retaliated by informing police.

Docketed at Central Station as heads of the raided lottery were Milton Berman, 42, and Nathan Valotsky, 42, of 22½ Diamond street. They were charged with conducting a lottery. The other 11 men arrested in the raid were accused of violating a city ordinance.

All will be given hearings in Central Station tomorrow.

In the raid, police seized two adding machines and thousands of number slips.

landing field when their fuel was completely exhausted, and were forced to take to their parachutes and leave their plane to its fate.

The fliers landed within a mile of each other, but quickly reached their plane, which they discovered was completely demolished. It did not catch fire in crashing, and they were able to salvage undamaged instruments.

Though it took off from Roosevelt Field early in the afternoon, the plane was not headed southward until 8 o'clock Tuesday night, the nearly five intervening hours being consumed in fueling contacts above the field, in which 425 gallons of gasoline were taken aboard.

The fliers, on reaching Havana, Cuba, were to have met another refueling plane and taken on an additional supply of gasoline for a continuance of their flight to Buenos Aires. Other refueling contacts were to have been made at Panama; Lima, Peru; and Mondoga, Argentina. The flight was expected to take about four days.

Police Recover $60,000 Loot In Raid After Gun Battle With Bandits in Canton

CANTON, July 16.—(AP.)—A robber identified as Charles Williams, alias Charles Kish, 25, of Canton, was shot to death and Charles M. Riblet, 69, former Canton police chief, was wounded here today in a pistol duel that followed the robbery of $70,000 from two messengers of the First National Bank.

A short time later, a black bag, identical with one taken from the messengers, was taken by police in a raid on a room said to have been occupied by James Romeo. Police said the bag contained $60,000 in currency.

Riblet and another messenger were attacked as they were passing the city building and the bag was seized. The bandit fled toward an automobile in which the second man was waiting.

Riblet opened fire on the man, who fell, while the second man jumped from the automobile, fired at the messengers and escaped after wounding Riblet. Both robbers were masked.

SECRET PACT PROTESTED

was the largest attendance reported at the opening of any session since the treaty debate began. Four others entered the Senate within the first hour, giving the administration almost a quorum of senators favoring the treaty.

In his speech, McKellar made no reference to his two reservations, one of which would pledge the three signatory nations to a guarantee of the freedom of the seas. The other would compel Great Britain to withdraw all her naval bases from the American coast line.

VICTORY FOR ENGLAND

Reviewing the Washington conference of 1922, McKellar said the United States entered an agreement then to sink 845,000 tons of warships, including nine superdreadnaughts and six new battle cruisers, along with 15 old warships. He said Great Britain had sunk only 15 old warships and declared:

"The British kept the flower of their navy while America sank 845,000 tons of her best warships. There never was in all the history of the world such a naval victory as Great Britain scored over the United States at the 1922 conference. The sinking of th eSpanish Armada was insignificant compared with the victory of British diplomats at the Washington conference.

ENTERED, LEFT INFERIOR

"The United States entered and came out of the London conference with a navy inferior to that of Great Britain and it is exceedingly doubtful whether we have parity with Japan today. We surely have no parity with Great Britain.

"Our own delegates to London know it, too, and admitted it in their proposal of Feb. 5."

So long as the British retain their superdreadnaughts Rodney and Nelson, which are superior to any other warships afloat, the United States could never obtain battleship parity with Great Britain, McKellar said. He read from the American offer a section proposing that the United States be allowed to build one new battleship of modern design, to offset the advantage held by Great Britain because she retained the Rodney and the Nelson, and added.

"As Long as the Rodney and the Nelson are kept by Great Britain, reducing our battleship strength merely increases our inferiority."

M'DONALD RULE IN BALANCE

LONDON, July 16.—(INS.)—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald's government faced an unexpected dilemma today, following the vote of the House of Lords to retain the disputed amendment to the coal bill.

The critical situation was further enhanced when the Liberal parliamentary group, hitherto supporters of the government, decided to vote adversely on policy questions if so desired, even though the result might mean the fall of the Labor Cabinet.

This leaves the MacDonald ministry on the fence. Shrewd political observers are awaiting with interest his next move, which may decide the downfall or continuance of MacDonald's term in office. He may surrender by accepting the Lords' amendment; drop the bill entirely, or carry the matter before the British electorate through a general election.

Gun Toter Caught With 2 Tires Held

James Kelly, 28, who said he had no home, was held for court today by Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Station on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Found walking in the street last night carrying two automobile tires, Kelly was arrested when he was unable to explain how he had obtained them.

JUDGE TAKES HAND IN QUIZ ON MERGER

Makes Many Inquiries as to Manner in Which Audit Was Checked After Error

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 16.—(AP.)—Judge David G. Jenkins, presiding in trial of the suit to enjoin merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, took over a defense witness today and questioned him at length as to the manner in which the audit of the two runs was checked after error had been charged.

The audit, which came into evidence for the first time yesterday, was prepared by Price, Waterhouse Company, of New York. Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Company, testified Hoyt Moore and George May were authorized to select three firms to make the check after Cyrus S. Eaton, of Cleveland, foe of the merger, accused Price, Waterhouse Company of making a serious error in its report. Judge Jenkins asked:

"Is that Hoyt Moore, the Bethlehem attorney, and George May of Price, Waterhouse Company?"

QUESTIONS AUDIT

Receiving an affirmative reply, the court asked again:

"The George May of Price, Waterhouse Company, whose report was to be check, was selected as one to make the choice who should do the checking?"

"Yes," replied Purnell.

"Did these three accounting firms report?"

"Yes, on March 31."

"Where did the firms make their investigation?"

"In the office of Price, Waterhouse Company, New York. Some of Bethlehem's men furnished the data."

"Before that second report was given, had the first one been returned?" asked the court.

"It was returned by me personally on March 17 to William Campbell, of Price, Waterhouse Company."

INTERESTED IN PAY

"Before the work was done by these firms between March 28 and 31, had the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company obligated itself to pay them anything for their services?"

"That wasn't discussed. They were probably paid something. I haven't seen any bill."

"That is important. I would like to know who employed them."

Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, chief of defense counsel, told the court the auditors were jointly employed by the two steel firms. The court said:

"I understand they were employed to safeguard the stockholders of Youngstown Sheet and Tube."

Later Judge Jenkins remarked:

"I still want to know about the charges for the work of these firms."

Attorney Baker said he would try to obtain the information.

ADVANTAGES CITED

In response to a question from Baker, the witness related what he believed to be the advantages of a merger between Youngstown and Bethlehem:

"The merger puts us with a strong company and gives us a diversification of products and location. It helps Bethlehem to the extent of giving them our pipe mills. I felt that we had reached the peak of our long career in 1929, when we had the best year we ever had. We were in the midst of a period of change in methods of manufacture and I was taking care of my company in this process of change."

Lutheran Pastors Debate Ban on Legionnaires

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 16.—(AP.)—After an all-day argument, 90 pastors attending a special meeting here of the Wisconsin and Missouri synods of the Evangelical Lutheran Church last night tabled until September 16 a proposal that would prevent American Legion members from membership in the church.

The anti-Legionnaires maintained the American Legion was an oath-bound secret and religious organization which was "anti-Christ" in the eyes of the church. They quoted Sergt. Alvin C. York, World War hero, as saying the American Legion's conventions were "rank" in violation of federal laws and decency.

Pastors favoring admission of Legionnaires to membership insisted the organization was not military, political or religious, but based purely on patriotic and civilian principles. Action will be taken at the September meeting to determine the status of Legionnaires in relation to church membership.

Mr. Coolidge 'Loses' Wife At Boston Tercentenary

BOSTON, July 16.—(AP.)—Former President Calvin Coolidge, although he took no active part in the tercentenary exercises, figured in prominently in two out of the ordinary incidents yesterday.

First, he lost his wife.

Second, he was informed by no less a political authority than James M. Curley, Democratic mayor of Boston, that he might be president again if he so chose.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were received by Gov. and Mrs. Frank G. Allen at the state house.

While on his way there he suddenly discovered that Mrs. Coolidge was not with him. He had started to retrace his steps when a legislative messenger asked if there was anything he could do. Mr. Coolidge said:

"I've lost my wife."

Mrs. Coolidge was found with Mrs. Allen.

As Mayor Curley mounted the speaker's stand on the Common to begin his address, he turned to recognize notables gathered there and facing Mr. Coolidge, said:

"Honored President that has been and, if he so desires, may again be."

Mr. Coolidge's face remained inscrutable.

PITTSBURGH GOLD STAR MOTHERS TO SAIL JULY 26

Blue Law

What Outstanding People Think Of It

(Each day for awhile the Sun-Telegraph will ask opinions of leading citizens on the state's antique Blue Law. The second group is presented below.)

HARRISON NESBIT, president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A.—I am thoroughly for the repeal of the Blue Law. Pittsburgh suffers by comparison with other large cities. We have so few attractions here and so little opportunity for recreation on Sunday. In Cleveland and Detroit, for instance, the people have the lake. Recreation is not severely restricted as in this state. Our people should be allowed every reasonable latitude in the way of sports and amusements on Sunday in my opinion.

Harrison Nesbit

JAMES H. HAMMOND, President of Gimbels of Pittsburgh.—The law should be changed to reflect the sentiment of the people today in accord with modern customs and thought, without interference with religious observance. The ancient regulations deprive the people of opportunity for proper recreation and constitute a detriment to the progress of the community.

James Hammond

SAMUEL J. GRENET, Member of Legislature.—Abolish the Blue Law. Customs have changed but the Blue Law has not changed. I remember when it was considered most immoral when stockings were not worn by women with their bathing suits. The Blue Law is a distinct handicap to Pittsburgh industry. Workingmen prefer to live in other cities for a lower wage than face our closed Sunday. I believe that supporters of the Blue Law are gradually coming to realize that it must be changed. Certainly the people of other large cities of the country where there are no Blue Laws are no less religious or moral or any worse than the people of Pittsburgh.

Samuel Grenet

ATTORNEY H. D. HIRSH, of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission.—The masses of the people are the victims of the Blue Law against their will. It is antiquated and generally detested. No public good is served by maintaining this law on our books. Its universal disregard breeds a defiance of law.

H. D. Hirsh

JAMES M. MAGEE, former Congressman.—The closed Sunday dictated by the Blue Law leads to a closed observance of the day in an evil sense. People with no opportunity for wholesome recreation on the only day when they have ample time for it will seek amusement less wholesome. Our younger people especially may be led into practices which might be prevented by truthful legislation. Look at the spectacle today of good people seeking to prevent swimming on Sunday. I can imagine many things worse than playing or watching baseball on Sunday afternoons and attending a moving picture performance on Sunday evening.

J. M. Magee

JOSEPH C. MARCUS, Chairman of the Allegheny County delegation in the Legislature of Pennsylvania.—The very best reason for repealing the Blue Law is the fact that there is no sound, logical or reasonable reason for keeping it on the statute books. Times, customs and habits have changed beyond recognition of their old standards. Mental, moral, social and legal outlooks have changed in everything that appertains to human life, its associations and its use. The Blue Law alone stands rockbound, rockribbed and untouched by time, by progress, by changed conditions. But only on paper and as a dead law has it preserved its authority. In practice it is ignored, violated flagrantly, laughed at and constantly broken in thousands of ways. Whoever today still observe the sacredness of the Sabbath, Gentile or Jewish, do it because of personal religious regard and a desire to live according to the inner-conscience. Nobody observes the Sabbath because of the Blue Law, unless some fanatic uses the law to persecute and prosecute. The disregard for the Blue Law, like the disregard for the prohibition law, has broken down the old respect and veneration that laws used to and ought to command. Repeal of such laws as the Blue Law would bring back and preserve a more wholesome respect and obedience to all laws.

46 TO MAKE TRIP FROM COUNTY

Accept Government's Offer Of Pilgrimage to Graves Of Sons Upon Battlefields

Forty-six gray-haired Gold Star Mothers of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, whose sons sailed across the grim Atlantic 12 years ago never to return, will start July 26 for for cemeteries in France, on a pilgrimage of love for a fond farewell at their kin's graves.

They have accepted the invitation of the War Department for the momentous trip and will sail from New York in five sections.

On battlefields, some grass-covered, but still unplowed, where blood-red poppies bloom beside shell craters, these mothers will hold last communion with their soldier sons. Each will bridge the distance of miles and years and bring back the childhood of the boy warrior who lies mute under a green blanket at the Meuse-Argonne, Ourc-Aisne and St. Mihiel burial grounds.

STILL ALIVE—TO THEM

To these heroic 46, the warriors are still alive and young, as the dead always wish to be. Although the rest of the world might have forgotten, these mothers will always remember.

The first contingent will leave here July 22 and 23 and be quartered at the Hotel McAlpin, New York, before sailing on the Republic.

In France, all will visit the Arc de Triomphe, Paris, the Hotel des Invalides, the battlefields, Alsace-Lorraine and the cemeteries.

TRIPS TO TAKE MONTH

Several members of the Service Star Legion, of which Mrs. Alice Horne, 125 Charles street, Knoxville, is past state president, will be in the party. Each trip will consume approximately a month.

When Mrs. James M. Bebout, of Pittsburgh, looks into the northern horizon, she will visualize the bloody twilight of September 29, 1918, when a heavy enemy barrage was falling.

She will picture her son, First Lieut. James D. Bebout, Company D, Three Hundred and Eighteenth Infantry, All-America football player at Penn State in 1912, volunteering to lead an attack against damaging Boche machine gun nests scattered th ughout No Man's Land.

As darkness descended that fatal day, scores of American officers and men were cut down like chaff by the staccato bullets of the guns. Volunteers were called for. Lieut. Bebout, according to War Department records, was the first to offer himself for duty.

DIES LEADING HIS MEN

Leading his battalion over the top and through the barbed wire, he drew his automatic at a German gunner. A bullet sang out. Lieut. Bebout was dead. After the heat of battle subsided, buddies tenderly brought him behind the American lines. Later he was laid to rest in the Meuse-Argonne Cemetery.

To Mrs. Mary E. Griffiths, of 925 Deeley street, will come retrospection on the death of her son, Corp. Samuel Griffiths, Company I, Three Hundred and Twentieth Infantry. It was the morning of September 25, 1918. The zero hour had arrived. Griffiths, leading his squad, had just scrambled over the trench parapets—less than 15 feet from protection. There was a terrific shell detonation. When the smoke cleared away, Griffiths and seven others were dead.

SENT TO CAPTURE ROAD

In the darkness of night, October 2, 1918, Corp. Wallace M. McIntyre, Company K, One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry, son of Mrs. Cecelia Woods McIntyre, of 513 McNair street, Wilkinsburg, was detailed with a platoon to capture an important road leading into the Argonne.

Quietly the doughboys made their way to a bend, heavily guarded by three machine guns. A magnesium flare illuminated the sky. The Americans stood in silhouette. Machine gun fire pierced the silence of the night. McIntyre and 28 others were shot down—dead. The road was taken.

Mrs. George O. Dailey, of Jeanette street, Wilkinsburg, will recall the kind letter from the commanding officer about her son, Sergt. Edward R. Gernert, Company G, Three Hundred and Twenty-fifth Infantry, after Gernert had been struck down a frosty morning in October, 1918, when a shell wrought havoc as he led his men over the top. Several of his companions were slain at the time. He lies in Meuse-Argonne Cemetery.

A shell-racked field near the Argonne Forest will be hallowed ground to Mrs. Emma Foster, of 804 Delmont street, mother of Private Lee M. Foster, Company F, One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry. Foster died while rushing sorely needed ammunition to the front. A machinegun bullet did the trick. Next morning he was interred where he fell. Later, he was laid to rest in the Meuse-Argonne Cemetery.

Corp. George J. Schmitt, Company E, Three Hundred and Twentieth Infantry, was fighting on Halloween night, 1918. He had only been in the Argonne trenches a few days. Shrapnel inflicted a mortal wound as he tore through barbwire. He died in an ambulance en route to a dressing station. His mother is Mrs. Anne Schmitt, of 3912 Scioto street.

List of Allegheny Gold Star Mothers going to France is printed on Page 6.

COAL LAND SALE ORDERED

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, on petition of H. W. Chadduck, receiver of the First National Bank of Uniontown, authorized a proposed sale of undeveloped coal lands in Greene and Washington counties, unconverted assets of the bank, to stockholders who formed a corporation known as the First National Land Company. The proposed consideration, $300,000, has the approval of the comptroller of currency, the petition cited.

The receiver in the petition said that the coal lands can not otherwise be sold advantageously at this time and the stockholders formed the corporation in order to prevent a sacrifice, subscribing for the capital stock in proportion to their shares of stock in the bank.

The bank was adjudged insolvent by the Comptroller of Currency on June 1, 1925. The depositors, the receiver said, have been paid in full, and in order to complete the liquidation he sought authority to sale the coal lands.

APPROPRIATION TOTAL RECORD

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS.)—Figures compiled today showed the first Congress of the Hoover administration to have broken all peace-time records for appropriations. The total was $4,924,929,233, which was $23,785,151 less than the Hoover budget recommended.

The fiscal record of Congress promises to become a battling point in the forthcoming congressional elections, the Democrats charging an "orgy of extravagance," and the Republicans defending the record, although the amount represents $208,692,465 more than the last Coolidge Congress.

Greater outlays for public works, the farm board, rivers and harbors works and miscellaneous expeditures accounted for most of the increases.

Veteran Ohio River Ferry Pilot Dies

MAYSVILLE, Ky., July 16.—(AP.)—William C. Cleppane, 83, for 50 years a pilot, master and captain of ferry boats, died yesterday. He was estimated to have crossed the Ohio River more than 50,000 times during his career and to have traveled over 100,000 miles on his river voyages. He spent his entire manhood in the river service and until a few months ago was acknowledged the oldest pilot on the upper Ohio.

MINERS' WAGE PARLEY LOCKS

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP.)—The conferences of anthracite operators and miners, meeting to frame a new wage and working agreement, recessed yesterday until tomorrow afternoon.

The formal statement issued at the conclusion of the session gave no explanation of the recess, and added that no definite conclusions were reached.

The two parties to the conference retired to adjoining rooms an hour before final adjournment and reconvened in joint session only for a few minutes. Whatever questions had been raised, neither side apparently was ready to yield, even after an hour's private session.

BRITISH SEND 2 WARSHIPS TO EGYPT

MacDonald Acts to Protect Foreigners; Troops Patrol Alexandria After Rioting

LONDON, July 16.—(AP.)—Prime Minister MacDonald announced in the House of Commons today that two warships have been sent to Egypt.

The ships have been ordered to proceed to Alexandria, which was the scene of serious rioting yesterday resulting in the deaths of 13 natives and one Italian.

The Prime Minister said that Sir Percy Lorraine, high commissioner for Egypt, had been instructed to inform the Egyptian Prime Minister he must be held responsible for the protection of foreign lives and property in Egypt.

TROOPS ON GUARD

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, July 16.—(AP.)—The streets of Alexandria, which seethed with clashes between police and strikers all day yesterday, were patrolled by soldiers working from strategic points this afternoon.

Another small demonstration was held in the Egyptian quarter, but there were no casualties.

Latest reports on the loss of life in rioting yesterday showed 14 killed, one of whom was an Italian, 56 injured seriously enough to be sent to hospitals, and 65 slightly hurt.

In all, 147 persons were arrested, most of them boys. Earlier reports regarding property damage, it was stated, appeared to have been exaggerated.

RUSH FOR SHOPS

The outburst occurred when Wafdists, the Nationalists opposing the government, organized in the main square of Alexandria a demonstration purported to be a "two-hour silence" in memory of those who had died as "martyrs for the constitution." A shrill whistle blast was the signal for a forward surge to the cry of "long live Nahas Pasha." The latter formerly was Premier of Egypt.

SLIGHT CHANCE FOR BOY FLIER

BENNINGTON, Vt., July 16.—(INS.)—Although Frank Goldsborough still clings tenaciously to life, his slim hold may slip at any time, hospital reports stated today. One said:

"He is still alive, but there appears to be little or no hope."

For a while, hope was held out for the eventual recovery of the boy aviator, found after a long search, pinned in the wreckage of his plane, which had crashed into Sucker Pond Mountain, five miles from here. This morning, however, his brief rally ended and he became weaker.

He passed a fairly comfortable night, physicians said. During most of the time he has been unconscious.

When the boy's plane fell, a fractured skull was the only major injury sustained by Goldsborough, but the long hours of exposure that passed following the crash Monday and finding of the wrecked plane early Tuesday made his condition critical, doctors said.

WITNESS GOING TO AID MOONEY

BALTIMORE, Md., July 16.—(AP.)—John MacDonald, whose self-admitted perjured testimony played a leading role in the conviction of Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings on murder charges 14 years ago, will start for San Francisco today on the first leg of the trip he wants to take to tell authorities officially and personally he lied at the 1916 trials.

The MacDonald party will go from Baltimore to New York, where it will be joined by Frank P. Walsh, eastern attorney for Mooney. From there it will go to California by way of Chicago, the witness' attorney, Hilary W. Gans and Charles Ruzicka, announced. When the departure from New York will be made is in the hands of Mr. Walsh.

The witness will be accompanied by his attorneys and Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who in 1921 obtained from McDonald the first statement that he had been coached by the prosecution in perjured testimony given at the trials of Mooney and Billings which identified them as the men who planted a suitcase containing the bomb which killed 10 and injured 40 during the Preparedness Day parade.

Weighted Body Found in Ohio River

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 16.—(AP.)—A body found in the Ohio River near Blennerhassett Island was identified last night as that of R. J. Weber, 83, of Parkersburg. An inquest was set for today. Pockets in Weber's clothing were filled with stones and a watch and purse which he usually carried were missing.

AGAINST CHURCH AS DRY WEAPON

CLEVELAND, July 16.—(AP.)—Selection of next year's meeting place was the principal business before the annual convention of the International Walther League today.

Delegates from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania joined in urging that the 1931 meeting be at Lutherland, Pocono Pines, Pa., a summer colony and camp promoted by the league.

The Rev. Harry Weidner, Cleveland, yesterday told the 2,000 young Lutherans assembled for the convention that the churches should not be made a weapon for prohibitionists, declaring:

"The Lutheran Church does not want to force its views upon anyone through the state. It feels that the prohibition law expresses the religious sentiment of a few churches who consider it their duty to tell others not affiliated with them how they must live."

New Police Clubs Contain Tear Gas

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP.)—Billies from one end of which tear gas cartridges may be discharged for subjugation of unruly prisoners have been tentatively approved by the department of correction for use in state institutions.

The billies have been furnished to keepers at the Tombs and the penitentiary on Welfare Island.

War-Shattered Cathedral Of Ypres Rises Anew

YPRES, July 16.—(INS.)—Shattered by German guns 15 years ago, the Cathedral of St. Martin has been completely restored and was consecrated today.

Eight years of continuous building and an expenditure of $1,425,000 evolved a reproduction of the edifice that was begun in the dim years of 1201, completed in 1304 and reduced to ruins during the World War. Restoration work is continuing on the famous Cloth Hall.

Religious services today were impressive and splendid. All prominent churchmen of Belgium and a number of high government officials participated in the ceremony.

Two men arrested by federal agents in dry raids in Tarentum late yesterday were to be arraigned before the United States Commissioner today. They are C. F. Collins, 50, and A. M. Hess, 44, owner of a filling station.

Dry agents said they arrested Collins in his automobile and confiscated four cases of whisky in the car. Later in his office at 320 Third avenue they found 17 pints of liquor, they said. Five gallons of liquor and a quart of gin were found in Hess filling station, they reported.

RUSSIA TO TALK BRITISH DEBT

LONDON, July 16 (Universal)—The question of Russia's indebtedness to Great Britain will shortly be settled. It was believed today with the latter's acceptance of an invitation to appoint a commission to confer with British representatives in London.

There may be a partial settlement of private debts amounting to $8,750,000,000, but no offer will be made regarding Russia's war debt to Great Britain which with interest now approaches $5,000,000,000.

The Russians, it is stated, insist that the war and private debt aspects of the settlement be kept separate. With regard to the private debts, Josef Stalin, Soviet dictator, has informed Britain that the offer will be nothing approaching 100 cents to the dollar.

Get RID of it!

New, pleasant way to remove

Dandruff in 3 days

Dandruff, whether dry or oily, should always be regarded as dangerous. Unchecked, it may lead to serious scalp infection, falling hair, and even baldness.

Dandruff is a condition brought about by over-activity of the sebaceous or fat glands which expel white globules called sebum. Many dermatologists assert that this over-activity is a result of infection.

Actual tests by thousands of men and women show that full strength Listerine used as a part of the regular shampoo, or independent of it, is highly successful in getting rid of loose dandruff and improving the condition of the scalp. In hundreds of cases, one or two treatments were found sufficient. In other cases three days were required. And in stubborn cases, ten days or more.

You simply douse Listerine on the scalp and massage vigorously till the entire scalp tingles. The massage is important as it increases the circulation of blood to the hair roots.

Listerine dissolves and removes the thick, greasy, repellent scales known as dandruff. It stimulates the skin around the hair and soothes and cools the entire scalp. Moreover when infection is present it instantly combats it. For Listerine, as you know, is a marvelous germicide and antiseptic.* (See below.) Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

*Though safe to use in any body cavity, full strength Listerine kills even the Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) germs in counts ranging to 200,000,000 in 15 seconds (fastest time accurately recorded by science).

PEERLESS—"ALL THAT THE NAME IMPLIES"

BABY MAY FLY SOON WITH LINDBERGHS

SHOULD TAKE TO FLYING

Another specialist, equally well known, answered that he thought the effect would be more on the mother than the child, and that from a psychological point of view this would indirectly influence the child. Still another said that it was a matter of individual temperament.

The little Lindbergh baby undoubtedly would take to traveling by aviation like a duck to water—with his inheritance. For it will be remembered that Mrs. Lindbergh is an enthusiast as well as her husband, and holds an aviation pilot's license.

"Junior," from the time of his birth, has had his brief career colored by aviation. The majority of mail that has been sent to him or to his parents congratulating them upon his arrival has come by air mail—and there have been some 300,000 letters. This number alone stands stored in a St. Louis warehouse.

NORMAL BABY

The first pictures to be made of him were taken by his father with an aviation camera in the garden of the Morrow estate at Englewood, N. J. His first trip by plane will be the third significant aviation contact in his young life.

Meanwhile, the object of this national and international curiosity sleeps, eats and cries much as any normal baby. The constant stream of messenger boys bearing gifts and ringing of the door bell with deliveries of express and truckmen means nothing to him.

The releasing of the photographs of the Lindbergh baby last week put an end to the presence of the group of photographers who were stationed outside the entrance waiting for a chance to get a picture of the infant.

GAINS IN WEIGHT

Weighing seven and a half pounds when he was born, the infant is gaining the normal amount of weight. His eyes are a deep blue—the color of his father's. His hair is a light golden brown, also much the color of his father's. Some say he has the Morrow nose and the Lindbergh mouth. But, he is just like all new-born babies and really resembles no one. He is just himself.

His maternal grandmother is in Cleveland. She will return East this week, going to Maine.

Like all healthy babies the world over, "Junior" is being nursed by his young mother and so if he departs on his flying trip for Maine he will be fed before he takes off, once on the trip and again after the plane has arrived.

JURIST SCORES CARROLL SHOW

NEW YORK, July 16.—(INS.)—Earl Carrol and eight members of his "Vanities" cast will have to wait until Monday to learn if they are to face trial in special sessions court for indecency.

Magistrate Gotlieb, after indicating he would hold the producer, Jimmy Savo, his chief comic, another comedian, and six beauties, for trial, said he would make a formal decision Monday. He informed prosecution and defense lawyers to file briefs by tomorrow. Said the magistrate, concerning a dance in the show:

"I determine it to be a lewd exhibition. The simple fact is that a dancer gave a nude dance. If this Miss Bacon can do it, then all women can appear nude on the stage and it will not be considered indecent. But we have not reached that point in New York City, even with all our leniency toward the stage and producers."

Warner's Manager To View Theaters

They were expected to spend part of the day in conference with local officials of the company.

5 BANK BANDITS EVADE CAPTURE

WILLMAR, Minn., July 16.—Search went on today for five machine gun bandits who descended on the Bank of Willmar yesterday, shot up the town, wounded two women, one probably fatally, and escaped with $50.00 in a gun battle with citizens.

Although it was estimated that more than 100 shots were fired by the bandits, the only casualties were the two women—mother and daughter—who were shot down in the final burst of firing as the robbers sped out of town.

The driver of the bandit car apparently was wounded in the exchange and was dragged from behind the wheel.

Physicians held little hope for recovery of one of the victims of the bandits' bullets, Mrs. Emil Johnson, who was shot through the arm and chest as she walked with her daughter, Mrs. Donald Gildia. Mrs. Gildia's wound in the leg is not considered dangerous.

CLUE TO LOST FLIER FOUND

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 16.—(AP.)—Maj. R. McDonald, in charge of the search for Maurice Graham, Western Air Express aviator missing since January, has started investigation of reports that a mysterious and unidentified man has been living for the past four months in a shack on the Colorado River.

McDonald said a prospector, whose name he would not divulge, has told him the man seemed to have lost his memory and had not shaved for several months. The shack, he said, was near the site of the Boulder Dam project.

Discovery of the remains of a camp fire about three miles south of the place where the wrecked plane was found last month indicated that the aviator might have gone in the direction of the Colorado River.

British Oust U. S. Missionary in India

BOSTON, July 16.—(AP.)—An American missionary was expelled by the British government from India because of his sympathy with Nationalist Indian leaders, the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions has announced. He was the Rev. Ralph R. Keithahn, of Fairmount, Minn.

Although there was no charge of sedition against Keithahn, British officials say they felt he had overstepped the attitude of neutrality required of foreigners in associating with members of the Congress party, attending Nationalist gatherings, and showing sympathy with Nationalist leaders.

Mother Shot by Son In Dispute Over Girl

JERSEY CITY, July 16.—(INS.)—Because she objected to her son's sweetheart, Mrs. Gladys McDonald, 46, lay near death in a hospital today. Her son, Royal, 24, a mechanic, is under arrest, charged with firing the shot which may bring her death.

McDonald said he had quarreled with his mother because he was friendly with Miss Marjorie Hundley, of Bayonne, N. J. Miss Hundley was held as a material witness.

Blood Pressure Causes Death of One-Third of People

—Senator Copeland

Watch Your Blood Pressure

By administering BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS directly into the blood stream, their healing virtues are not lost, which is true of medicine given by way of mouth. This method is becoming obsolete. A great truth comes into view, and that is, intravenous therapy is fast becoming one of the prime autocrats of medicine. A method that is scientific, while the results are more certain.

Your White Blood Cells in Health and Disease

BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS affect not only one organ but have a corrective influence on every part of the body. One serum frequently gives relief. Chronic and obstinate diseases that have long resisted all forms of treatment readily yield to the action of BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS.

We invite you to call for a free consultation, no matter what your ailment is. No doctor charges. Patients pay for the serum only. We are successfully treating Anemia, Asthma, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Kidney and Stomach Trouble, High Blood Pressure, Neuritis, Catarrh of Ears, Nose and Throat, all Blood and Skin Diseases. Laboratory Examination, Blood, Free. Come and talk to the patients. Results are what you desire. 35,000 people have taken these serums at this Laboratory.

the day's grind demands men of unusual Vitality

"Oh! fine"

you want to feel the same way

BUSINESS today requires that the successful man be physically fit and mentally alert.

Men, especially, forget themselves physically. Their work demands practically all their time. They do not exercise enough. They get little or no sunshine. They are robbed of a good appetite . . . and when their red-blood-cells fall below normal their flesh becomes flabby, their nerves unsteady. Their strength must be reinforced.

Soundness of body and peace of mind depend upon the proper number of red-cells in the blood—5,000,000 to the cubic millimeter. They give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red-cell count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It helps Nature build rich, red-blood-cells. It promotes healthy body building.

You will be pleased to know that S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs. It is easily assimilated. Pleasant to take.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor.

IRVIN S. COBB'S ADVICE on catching trout will interest Pittsburgh anglers tonight. The famous humorist will relate his experiences in hooking this aristocrat of the finny tribe when he speaks over WCAE at 10:30.

Adding a picturesque touch to the program will be the orchestral presentation of "Indian Love Call" from Friml's "Rose Marie."

Irvin S. Cobb

Listeners on the 8:30 program over WCAE will hear Nat Shilkret's Orchestra contrast Johann Strauss compositions. Of varying tempo will be his "Wine, Woman and Song" waltz, the "Pizzicato Polka" and "Egyptian March."

Palmolive Hour, WCAE at 9:30, will range the musical spectrum from the flashing colors of sunrise to the contrasting shades of twilight. These beautiful words might well be condensed in the best composition of the evening, "Beautiful Blue Danube Waltz," which will be sung by Oliver Palmer.

WE NOW PRESENT

"Let's see that thing," asked Jack, the elevator operator at KQV, the other night when he hauled an accordion player to the studios. Strapping the squeeze-box over his shoulder, Jack proceeded to play a rhapsody.

When Jack was with a Hungarian band he had his "ins and outs." Now he's having his "ups and downs."

Owen Brothers hardly look alike . . . fact is they aren't related.

But they have autographed pictures of Amos 'n' Andy. That, of course, makes them brothers—at least in that great fraternal organization, "Mystic Knights of the Sea."

* * *

KDKA boys, led by Percy Boyd, Lou Kaufman, Walter Myers and Glenn Riggs, are ready to tee off with the Red Arrow Quartet Friday at Castle Shannon. The course is to be from pit to pit, we understand, with bushel baskets used as cups.

Tweet! Tweet! Ted Kaye is taking vocal lessons.

Marjorie Keil Benton, whose voice students sing frequently over KQV, ascribes much of the credit for her early musical education to Elmer Zoller, noted Pittsburgh pianist, who once was on the staff of WCAE and since has played accompaniments for many noted artists on the networks.

Which reminds us that Charlotte Gray, former hostess at WCAE, now staff pianist for NBC at New York, was the guest of Sara Logan over the week-end.

KDKA is to have the Singer-Mandell championship bout from Yankee Stadium tomorrow night at 10. McNamee at the ringside.

THE BEES' KNEES

The script for "Ginger," a recent WLW drama, called for bees, buzzing as they attacked an army. After trying all kinds of buzzes from buzz-saws to home-made buzzes buzzed by the best studio buzzers, Dan Winget, in charge of sound effects, tried catching bumble bees. Stung twice, he gave it up. The buzzing went on nevertheless with a farmer toting 1,000 bees into the studio in a box a foot square. The bees buzzed at the right time when studio attendants blew cigaret smoke at them through wire screening.

FACTS AND FANCIES ABOUT PLAYS AND PLAYERS APPEARING ON SCREEN

Wheeler and Woolsey Put Comedy Teams Back In Running

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 16.

Comedy teams have been brought back to fashion by Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler. A year ago all the studios were discarding their paired comedians, Karl Dane and George K. Arthur dropped out of the limelight at Metro-Goldwyn. Other companies followed suit.

Now, Warner Brothers are planning to feature Olsen and Johnson, and M-G-M has uncovered one of the greatest comedy teams of screen history in Marie Dressler and Polly Moran.

In the meantime, the Messrs. Woolsey and Wheeler are proceeding merrily on their way at R-K-O. Since "Rio Rita" they've done "The Cuckoos" and they are now engaged in filming "Half-Shot at Sunrise." They will next essay "A Going Concern." The last-named story sounds like a winner. It relates the adventures of two Americans who buy a South American revolution in full cry.

Bert Wheeler

All of the Woolsey-Wheeler pictures are semi-musicals. Harry Tierney, who did the music of "Rio Rita," is composing the score for "Half-Shot at Sunrise." He has installed his grand piano in a shack on the company location and rehearses with Woolsey and Wheeler there.

PURCHASER WANTED

Being a movie star has its tedious moments. Out at Pathe, the orchestra on a Havana cafe set was pounding away on a number. It had played the number every day for 10 days. Jimmy Gleason looked at the players broodingly.

"What's the name of that thing?" he asked.

"It's a cottage for sale," replied an assistant.

"Well," muttered Jimmie darkly, "I wish somebody would buy the blamed thing.

Apropos of nothing, Lillian Roth says that she lost $100 on a tooth at Agua Caliente. Surely she didn't bite the horse?

* * *

Though it isn't generally known, Warners are refilming a number of scenes in "The Gay Caballero" to avoid displeasing the Mexican government.

Lillian Roth

It seems that Mexico objects to the burlesqued portraits of its generals that have been found in some recent talkies. Hearing of this, Warners took stock of the character played by Charles Judels in "The Gay Caballero," and decided to make a few retakes. The general is to have dignity in the new version.

This is an example of the many difficulties that beset movie producers, and of their quick response to protests made by a foreign government.

NAMES CHANGE AGAIN

Several days ago, I mentioned that Paramount had decided to call Buddy Rogers' brother, Frank Rogers. Since then, there's been another change. The final verdict is Bruce Rogers. This supplants the somewhat indefinite "BH," which was a contraction of B. H., the initials of Rogers pere.

Upon the suggestions of dozens of fans, the nickname, "Buddy," also is to be dropped, and "America's boy-friend" henceforth will be referred to only as Charles Rogers.

Maurice Chevalier.

Are you still with me, or is all this too involved?

Maurice Chevalier was discovered by this department banging away on a typewriter on "The Little Kafe" set. He's learning the touch-system.

D. W. TRAVELS

D. W. Griffith's "Abraham Lincoln" is reported to be opening on Broadway next month. At about the same time, his synchronized version of "The Birth of a Nation" will be seen out here. The director is on his way East, if he isn't there already, to pay Broadway a visit, and to be present at the world premiere of his pictures.

* * *

The proposed sequel to "In Old Arizona" and "The Cisco Kid" will renew the rivalry of Warner Baxter, as the picturesque bandit, and Edmund Lowe, as the hard-boiled sergeant.

They will meet in the Army during the Spanish-American War, and later Lowe will be sent out to capture his erstwhile rival.

No starting date is available for the picture, as Lowe must first do "Scotland Yard."

WALTER WINCHELL • On Broadway

COPYRIGHT 1930 DAILY MIRROR INC.

To a Playboy

You think you know your Broadway rather well,
They bow to you at all the ritzy clubs;
You like the fun that Broadway has to sell,
And leave the little side-streets to the dubs;
But Broadway is a stranger to you yet,
A suave and courteous servant to your will,
But wait a year or two—I'm game to bet
That when you're through you'll hate to foot the bill.

When you have lived the pace that gets them all,
When you have loved—as you are bound to do,
When you have lost and had to drink the gall,
I'll drop around and have a word with you;

I'll shake your hand and look at you and say:
"Old boy, at last I think you know Broadway!"
—Don Wahn.

Is My Face Red?

A lad named Frank Ward O'Malley, who was once called "America's Greatest Reporter," has returned, it appears, after a 10-year alcoholiday in France. New York and Broadway aren't the same, he writes in the Eve-world.

"Who—or what," he inquires, "is this Rudy Vallee? Right in what is left of my own Times Square I heard important mention given to gentlemen named Jed Harris and, as I recall, Amos 'an' Andy. Amos 'an' Andy what? Sam Harris, yes, but I never heard of any Jed Harris of even any slight importance in the Broadway theatrical life I so recently knew. Newspapermen spoke of one of the craft named Walter Winchell. Never heard of him."

O'Malley?

No Kiddin'!

"Dear Walter," affectionately writes Irving Strauss from the Rocky Mountain region, "have just been through Albu—Alberq—I have just been through Pueblo and you are all wrong about the Indians—they do not make whoopee. They make pottery."

In Fewer Words

In the Duc de la Rochefoucauld manner:

It is much easier to take love when one is free, than to get rid of it after having it . . . There are people whose faults become them; others whose very virtues disgrace them . . . . . The test of extraordinary merit is to see those who envy it most, yet obliged to praise it . . . . . There are few virtuous women who are not tired of their part. Conceit causes more conversation than wit . . . . . It is valueless to a woman to be young unless pretty, or to be pretty unless young . . . . . All passions make us commit some faults—love alone makes us ridiculous.

Broadway Gets You

Among other unusuals on Broadway, never pointed out by the sight-seeing bus megaphoneys, is the lad who just ended a 12-year stretch in a prison. While a convict he pitched for the prison nine, winning most of their games, for he has skill with the pill.

Broadway has changed a lot to him, too, since he settled his score with society Up There, and he is restless, standing on the corner in the 50's day in and night out. He misses the mob in the Who's Whosegow and his arm twitches when he he reads how they are losing games incessantly.

Recently, they urged him to come up some Sunday and help them win a game for a change. He obliged, but he wasn't in shape—he was knocked out of the box. Dejected over his defeat, he offered a plausible alibi.

"I lived right when I was in jail," he said, "but since I got back to New York it is something awful. Late hours 'n' everything, night clubs, chop suey 'n' people who dissipate. If I don't get back in that jail I'm liable to get consumption or something. It's beginning to tell on me!"

Gag

Then there's the one about the Joosh person who was self-conscious about his dialect. He had a difficult time of it with his v's, so when he tried to compliment a singer at a party, he gummed up things by saying:

"I was so gled to hear your worse."

How Embarrassing!

Doug. Fairbanks, Irv Berlin, Joe Schenck, Cholly Chaplin and Chief Long Lance were swapping gab about pests who annoy celebrated movie players at public places. How some people call stars by their first names and how the stars must be careful not to lose their tempers.

Fairbanks then told how he once decided to be himself and not be annoyed by strangers who lapeled him. It happened in Rome when he toured the world with Mary. Out of the crowd pushed a man and he grabbed Doug's paw.

"Hello, there Doug, old boy, how are you? Haven't seen you in years," said the fellow.

Doug was weary and bothered with strangers so he sarcastically snapped:

"I'm sorry, but I do not remember meeting you at any time or place before. Just what is your name, please?"

"I am very sorry," said the man meekly, "I didn't mean to be rude. I thought you remembered me. My name is Marconi."

Since that incident, Doug has never been surly with any one.

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Anne and Eaton Profess Love for Each Other

CHAPTER XXXV.

They parked the car back of the cottage, and Kathleen said mysteriously:

"Wait here, and if I wave from the porch, go around to the beach. She spends her time there, she wrote me."

He waited by the car, lighting a cigaret, and instantly throwing it away. Wind and water and the grass stirring—blue sky and a blue sea.

He heard the door bang, heard voices, saw Kathleen wave.

Eaton walked around the house, down the few rickety wooden steps to the sand. Anne was lying curled up in the sand by a small dune. No one else was in sight, save, not very far off, two little boys, who dug busily, building their castles.

"Anne!"

She looked up and somehow got to her feet. She wore a plain dark bathing suit, and her round arms and pretty legs were tanned, and the face she lifted was bronzed and rosy. The bright coolie coat she had slipped on over her suit was startlingly becoming.

"I've come for you," he told her, as still she did not, could not, speak.

"For me?"

She was pale under the tan now, and her eyes were blazing. He stretched out his arms in a gesture of longing.

"I can't get along without you. I love you," he told her. "You'll have to marry me, Anne."

But she did not quite believe it, even when the arms took her, held her in their embrace.

After a while he asked: "Why did you run away from me?"

"Because I loved you."

"Why did you engage yourself to O'Hara?"

"Because I loved you," she said again.

"Then how long have you cared?" he demanded, after the fashion of happy lovers.

"Almost always—ever since I first came into your office. But I didn't know it altogether. You see," explained Anne, "I had you all confused with the work. I loved that, too."

"And when did you first separate me from your job?" he wanted to know, drawing her down to sit beside him at the sliding sand feet of the dune.

Never Loved Ted

Anne was silent a moment. She knew when the first full realization of bitter love had come to her—that night at Hot Springs. But she wished to erase it from her memory. So she evaded, with gay tenderness.

"Oh, how can I tell? Suddenly I just knew, that's all."

"I, too," he said, and kissed her again.

After a minute he told her:

"That night at your flat—I must speak of it, darling—I came to ask you to wait until I was free. I was driven. I had sworn I would wait until Linda got her decree. I argued that it was best for us both. But when I heard about O'Hara I had to—ask you if it was true, and if it was not true, to tell you that you were mine and I would never let you go."

Anne stared at him, her eyes dark.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

But she shook her head and smiled. Better not to tell him. Better that he never should know that his mistake, the word left unsaid, had caused them both so much misunderstanding and suffering. Better that he never should learn that she had not pledged herself to O'Hara before Eaton had come to her.

He was telling her how he had felt when he had learned of her broken engagement. He was telling her:

Discuss New Secretary

"You never loved him, Anne. Say you never loved him!"

"No," she answered, "I never loved him. Only you, Larry."

After a long interval she remembered to ask him:

"How did you find me? How did you come?"

He told her, "I brought Kathleen with me," he added. "And by the way, your father thinks that your mother may disapprove."

"Not when she realizes how happy I am," said Anne.

In a little while they must go into the house to be exclaimed over and questioned and made much of. But these few moments, the sweetest, the never-to-be-recaptured, were their own. And Eaton planned happily:

"We'll be married at once. And we'll go away for a while. Then I must get back to work. We'll find a place somewhat—a house. Wouldn't you like a little house all your own, Anne?

"I'd adore it!"

"And a camping spot somewhere in the country—not a great barn for you to bury yourself in," he said jealously, "but a place we'll escape to—together."

"And I'll go on being your secretary," Anne announced.

"No." The arm about her tightened. "No; never again."

"Oh, Larry!" She still said his name breathlessly, it was so new a name to her lips. "Oh, Larry, why not?"

"Because I love you too much. Girl, I have to work and I can't have you near to distract me."

She nodded after a moment, but she was wounded with a sense of loss. No longer the Office Wife. Just—Wife. That was better, of course, more wonderful, complete, perfect. Yet.

He said, frowning: "And getting a new secretary is something I'll have to worry about when we come home again."

Anne asked instantly: "Who did your work after I left? Miss Danton? No, she won't do permanently. Let me see." She thought a moment and then said suddenly: "There's a girl—Mr. Power's secretary—a Miss Conner. I knew her slightly. She's had good training. I think she'd do splendidly, and I could break her in for you quickly. She's capable and quite attractive."

"As if the attractive part mattered!"

"Oh, but it does." Anne smiled at him wisely, and went on: "You could talk to her before—before we go away."

"I'll leave it to you," he said contentedly.

Anne Thoughtful

There was a silence, warm and sunny and golden. The ocean beat there, creaming on the wet broad sands, a stone's throw away. A gull flew screaming over the broken blue of the water.

Happiness held them and desire and the radiant promise of fulfillment. The wind sang softly in the leaning grasses. There were voices from the house, and some one called. Soon they must go in.

"What fun we'll have!" he promised her softly. "What comrades we'll be!" His voice deepened. "What lovers!"

Her heart shook with an intolerable rapture and the color rose into her throat and face. She tightened her hand in his and looked at him sweetly, gravely.

"Of what are you thinking, little Anne?"

"Of you; always of you!"

But she was thinking, briefly of the suddenly important Conner girl, the girl Anne would train to be the perfect office wife; and she was wondering if ever she would be jealous, if ever she would be afraid.

She knew, you see, how much a man came to lean on the woman who shared his office hours. She knew. And she herself would be at home, waiting.

No Longer Afraid

Anne tilted her chin in challenge and defiance. No, she was not afraid. She knew that side of him, too. Nothing was sealed to her. No one could usurp her place.

She leaned forward and kissed him. "We must go in and tell them our plans."

A caption danced before her mental vision, as on a silver screen: "Employer Marries Secretary."

Well, she knew how to keep her own.

He rose and lifted her to her sandaled feet. "Dearest!"

Very boyish he was, very young and gay-hearted in his unsearching happiness. Raising her lips to his, she felt how much older she was, how much wiser—with the wisdom of women. And not afraid. Never afraid any more.

"I love you," she told him, and there was promise and passion and the gravity of unending vigilance in her voice.

They walked slowly back to the house—the blue sky overhead, the blue ocean like a pulsebeat in their ears, the sunlight full on their faces, warming the dark, enchanted troubling of their flesh and blood like golden wine.

The End.

BEWARE of the man who Offers you a Dollar for Fifty Cents

Good American dollars are not on sale at less than their face value.

Real special motor fuels can't be purchased at the price of regular gasoline. If you want real special motor fuel performance you must pay more at the start—though you pay less in the end.

Amoco-Gas costs more per gallon. Special ingredients make it cost more to make.

Amoco-Gas does more. It gives you thrilling performance such as you've never known. It gives more miles to each gallon which makes up for a slightly higher initial cost. And it reduces operating expenses by reducing repair bills, increases the trade-in value of your car, pays big dividends on a slightly higher initial investment.

In the field of regular gasolines, we offer Orange American Gas—best in its price class. Best, not because we say so, but because automotive engines prove it so. Orange American gas is a regular gasoline—but what a bargain at regular price!

You can't get something for nothing and we won't say that you can. If you want real special motor fuel performance you must pay a premium price. If you want the best motor fuel performance at the lowest cost per mile, you must have Amoco-Gas.

We will say that when you pay the regular gasoline price you get regular gasoline—some better than others—Orange American Gas the best buy of all.

And we will say that when you stop at either the Amoco-Gas or the Orange American Gas pump you get the best values on the market for your money

Now you go and prove it.

"KONJOLA BEST MEDICINE I EVER TOOK," SAYS MAN

Is Enthusiastic Over Results Obtained Through New and Different Medicine.

"There is the medicine I should have had in the first place." Times without number this statement has appeared in the written or verbal endorsements of Konjola from men and women who have found their first and only relief through its use.

MR. CLARENCE M. SMITH

"Why is it that Konjola succeeds when all else tried has failed?" This, and many other questions are answered daily by the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Call upon him there. Ask questions. Delve into the record of Konjola—find out what it has done, is doing, and will do. Then decide to put Konjola to the test.

Konjola works quickly, yet thoroughly, just as it did in the case of Mr. Clarence Smith, 805 Broad Street, Washington, near Pittsburgh, who found relief in this great medicine. Mr. Smith said:

"I suffered for a long time with pains across my back. Stomach pains were often so severe that it felt as though knives were being driven into my body. I was badly constipated, and bloated terribly after meals. My whole system in general was rundown, and I was badly worried.

"A ten-day treatment of Konjola gave me wonderful results. The gas no longer accumulates after meals and I am no longer subject to bloating spells. Back pains are things of the past, and I am free from constipation. I never find laxatives necessary. I am stronger and feel better in every way than I have for a long time. I think Konjola is the best medicine I have ever taken."

It is such records as that given by Mr. Smith that have made Konjola the most widely discussed medicine in America today.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold in all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folks Still Here Take Active Part in Country Club Life

For two weeks now of sunny July I have been talking of nothing but travelers and this morning in addition to the usual travel notes I can tell you about a wedding that took place yesterday morning. Although there is still a bit of entertaining going on in social circles, the affairs are very small and informal.

The people who are here at home occupy their time at the country clubs golfing, playing tennis and swimming. And they too, will be leaving before this month is over. Some, however, are postponing their going until mid-August though I know of lots of folks who will leave the first of August. And now before I tell you about the wedding I want to tell you about more travelers.

Travel Notes

The William Marcelin Scaifes of Sewickley with their daughter Dorothy are on a western trip. The William R. Scotts of Northumberland street, and their son William R. Scott, Jr., are in Cape Cod.

Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Jr., leaves the first of August for Southampton, L. I., and will be accompanied by her sons William Penn Snyder, III, and George Whitney Snyder. The Snyders at present are at their summer place "The Little House" on Sewickley Heights.

Emilie Roseburgh, daughter of Mrs. William Roseburgh, Jr., of Kinsman road, is leaving this month to attend a golf tournament in Erie and Mrs. Roseburgh has just returned from a 10-day sojourn at White Sulphur Springs.

Mrs. Homer Saint Gaudens of the Bellefield Dwellings leaves soon for her summer home in Cornish, N. H. Mrs. Ralph S. Richards is in Hyannisport, Mass., at her summer home. The first of August will take Mary-Cree Porter and her sister, Martha, of Sewickley, abroad. And their brother, James Wilson Porter, Jr., is leaving July 24.

And now before I tell you about more travelers I will tell you about the wedding that lovely small wedding that took place yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in St. Paul's Cathedral. The bride was Camilla Marie Reilly, daughter of the Eugene S. Reillys, of Wightman street, and she became the bride of J. Van Rensselaer Kelly, son of the Joseph A. Kellys, of Beacon street. The Rev. Vincent Burke was the officiant. Only the immediate members of the family were present at the ceremony, and the bride had no attendants. The youthful Kellys left for an extended eastern motor trip, and will make their home in Pittsburgh later; you will be interested in knowing.

Morning Wedding

The John Cronan Blairs of South Fairmont avenue will leave tomorrow to motor to Les Cheneaux, Mich., to stay until September calls them back to a round of festivity. On Thursday morning three women are leaving for a motor trip, Mrs. William Arrott, of Academy avenue, Sewickley; Mrs. George E. McCague, of Pine road, and Mrs. William E. Frick, of Boundary street. And they will spend some time at Lake Placid, N. Y., and then will go to Montreal, Quebec and Murray Bay. They will motor through the New England States, too, before they complete their trip.

Caroline Crittenden, with her mother and father, the William Jackson Crittendens, of Sucasa Shields, left last week by motor for the New England States.

Sara Lewis, daughter of the Bertrand West Lewises, who is in Manitou Island, Ontario, Canada, has as her house guest Anna Priscilla Negley, daughter of the R. Heberton Negleys, of South Negley avenue. The Adirondack Mountains have attracted Mrs. Oliver Perry Scaife, Jr., of Aiken avenue, who with her son, Oliver Perry Scaife, III, is leaving today to remain until the end of July in the mountains. They will go to Bay Head, N. J., for the month of August.

House Guest

And you will be interested in knowing that Dr. and Mrs. Harold J. Dorrance, of South Negley avenue, and their daughter, Eloise, who have been in Philadelphia for the past 10 days, were in New York yesterday to meet their daughter, La Salle Dorrance, who arrived aboard the Westernland. She was accompanied by Amy Durfee, of Boston. La Salle returned from Paris where she had been studying for some time. The Dorrances will motor to their summer home at Foxburg to spend the remainder of the summer after returning to Philadelphia for a short while. La Salle, you will recall, probably will make her debut this winter, although no date has been chosen.

Miss Vivian Janice Cahen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Mayer Cahen, of Coraopolis, has chosen Sunday, August 17, as the date for her marriage to Albert Harold Reeves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reeves, of Philadelphia. The ceremony, which will be performed at 5:30 o'clock in the Ritz Carlton Hotel, Atlantic City, by the Rev. Herman Hailperin, of Pittsburgh, will be followed by a dinner for the immediate relatives.

To Wed Aug. 17

Miss Cahen has asked her sister, Mrs. David Whitman, to be her matron of honor, and only attendant. Donald Cahen, a brother, will serve as best man, and the ushers will include Julius Collins, Boston; Simon Englander, Newark; Herman Orloff, Philadelphia, and Jay Harris, Pittsburgh. Upon completion of a trip to Nova Scotia, Mr. Reeves and his bride will live in Germantown, where they will be at home after September 15.

Robert Thompson Wagner, of California avenue, North Side, announces the marriage of his sister, Miss Nora Obey Wagner, to Joseph Henry Zelch, which took place quietly yesterday morning, with the Rev. Howard Rodgers, of the Emsworth Presbyterian Church, officiating. After a motor trip through Canada and the northeastern states, Mr. and Mrs. Zelch will be at home in Kew Gardens, Long Island, days after September 1, having been announced.

Pittsburghers cruising on the steamship Octorara are Mr. and Mrs. Philip W. Price, Charles Price, Dr. and Mrs. George Sippel, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stonecipher and LeRoy Mitchell.

Miss Florence Kline, of Pittsburgh, is at the Park Central Hotel, New York.

* * *

Mrs. Lawrence W. Knapp, of the Schenley Apartment, and her son, Lawrence W. Knapp, Jr., sailed today aboard the Bremen for a two-month continental tour.

DESIGNER PRESENT LATEST DINNER ENSEMBLE CREATION

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 16.—The ensemble is again on the sartorial dinner menu, but in a very different guise from the models favored last summer. The ensemble has become a very subtle affair with harmony rather than an exact matching note, the dominating effect. More frequently the color is matched rather than the fabric, thus allowing for greater charm and originality in the costume. Sometimes the wrap matches a dominant color note in the trimming, as for example a white frock with touches of blue repeating that color in a short wrap, a fashion highly favored by the younger generation over here. The black and white ensemble is of course ever with us and this season the red and white wrap has had quite a run. Very much liked is the white frock with a short matching coat, the dress of heavier fabric than the coat or vice-versa. It's the ensemble of course, but a vastly more delightful affair than the flowered chiffons that bloomed everywhere last summer both for day and evening. For both the professional and amateur stylist—and that must include almost every woman—it is exceedingly interesting to watch the evolution of a mode until it passes into oblivion, only to reappear years later as a new idea.

FOR THE WOMAN who is addicted to printed sheer or semi-sheer materials for her afternoon frock, we would cordially recommend the Irene Dana model for formal afternoon wear depicted here. It is a georgette printed in a lovely design of large clusters and trailing vines of roses in shades of pink, blue and mauve, scattered on a background of finest lattice design in black on white. The frock is sleeveless and has a deep scalloped cape which starts at either side of the bodice. A belt of blue leather is worn with this frock of beautiful but subdued coloring.

THE OTHER SKETCH will acquaint you with the type of ensemble now seen in Paris at the very smartest places. This particular ensemble was seen at the Ambassadeurs and is an all-white costume. The dress is of heavy white crepe with a flaring skirt draped in points. Over the dress is worn a transparent coatee of white silk veiling with tight sleeves to which are attached the sides of the deep cape coming from the back. The coat ties closely over the hips with a bow at the front.

(Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.)

"Saves the clothes," says Mrs. W. F. Wiser, 5356 Kincaid St.

"I just sit amazed when I hear people talk about scrubbing clothes. Why, nowadays all you need to do is soak the week's wash in Rinso suds . . . and out it comes white and gleaming. This easy way actually saves the clothes because there's no boiling or scrubbing. I choose Rinso every time—for the wash, for the dishes, and for cleaning!"

MRS. W. F. WISER,

Wonderful suds for washers, too

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as light, puffed-up soaps. Lively suds that soak out dirt—save scrubbing. How that saves the clothes!

Just as wonderful in washers! The makers of 38 famous washers recommend Rinso. And better class laundries use this safe soap. Get the BIG package. It's great for dishes, too. Try it!

SOVIET LUMBER RULING SCORED

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(AP.)—Vigorous objection to the Treasury's recent ruling which permitted admission of six shiploads of lumber from Russia is raised by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association in a brief filed with Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury.

The protest contends the evidence produced in the hearing did not sustain the conclusion by Lowman that the shipments were not produced wholly or in part by convict labor.

It argued there was nothing inconclusive about an official order of the Soviet government addressed to persons at lumber mills and logging camps in the affected regions and in the declarations that 100,000 prisoners are employed in that region.

It added that while it is not possible to prove that every board in the cargoes in question is the product of convict labor, to insist upon such proof would merely nullify by administrative regulation the specific act of Congress.

COURT SLAYER INDICTED

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—(AP.)—The county grand jury yesterday indicted Frank D. Keaton, real estate broker, for the murder of Motley H. Flint, financier, in a Superior Court room here.

The grand jury's action followed a verdict by a coroner's jury.

Keaton did not testify, the grand jury acting without calling him while the coroner's jury summoned him to testify but he refused.

Among the witnesses before the coroner's jury was Judge Collier, who said he saw Keaton fire three bullets as Flint completed his testimony in civil action. Two detectives said Keaton told them he shot Flint because he believed him responsible for his stock market losses.

PIANOS

That You May Select With the Leisure Not Possible in Friday's Crowds

The necessity for a quick disposal of "traded-in", shopworn and floor sample pianos is desperately urgent. Hence these almost unbelievable Remnant Day prices.

Unquestionably it would pay this store to throw out — "junk" most of these instruments rather than sell them at these prices with all the attendant expenses, but when we consider their condition and the joy they will bring to many a home — to the children especially, we are persuaded to absorb the cost of selling, delivery, etc. and sell them to those who will appreciate their value.

BOGGS & BUHL

REMNANT DAY

FRIDAY

The Day After Tomorrow

The first Remnant Day ever held was, as far as record and memory show, Boggs & Buhl's original Remnant Day, held over a half century ago. Remnant Day has become an outstanding and dominating selling event—a sale known all over this part of the country as the greatest clearance sale Pittsburgh witnesses.

Established more than fifty years ago, this community has witnessed more than a hundred Boggs & Buhl Remnant Days—each succeeding one better than the one before — acknowledged far and wide as one pre-eminent day of phenomenal values and sensational prices.

Red Ink Prices prevail—Red Ink Prices that three generations have come to recognize as rock-bottom prices—the kind that sell on sight—and that cover a great host of merchandise that includes the needs of everyone.

Remnant Day is a clearance day—cost is given scant consideration in the relentless and sweeping clearance which brings hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of goods from every nook and cranny in the store.

Tens of thousands of shoppers will crowd into the store Friday—people from hundreds of miles around, from three states. Thrifty, provident, foresighted buyers—keen to profit by values that are a real sensation.

M'GOVERN SCORES BOULEVARD SURVEY

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM O'FARR

Johnnie Weiner, of Squirrel Hill, who was the chief detective of Washington County for seven years, tells how Judge McIlvaine once squelched a local attorney who was noted for taking up the court's time in making long speeches which didn't mean much, if anything.

The attorney was in the midst of one of his loquacious masterpieces when an elderly juror arose and said to the court:

"Judge, I can't understand a word that man's sayin.'"

"Sit down," Judge McIlvaine replied, "You're an ideal juror."

Weiner remembers also the time he and the late Hal Hughes were campaigning. Mr. Hughes was a candidate for the bench. With Weiner he was touring the provinces of Washington County seeking support. At one farm they came to a stop and the candidate addressed the man of the farm.

"My name is Hughes," he said. "I'd like to be elected to the bench. I've never held that office but I believe I can qualify. I'd like to have your support."

The farmer cast a critical eye over the campaign card Mr. Hughes handed him and made a speech of his own.

"Well, now," he said, "there's one thing I'd like to know 'fore I say I'll vote for you or again you. Are you wet or dry?"

Candidate Hughes, mildly stunned by the cross-examination, tried quickly to decide which answer the farmer wanted. He decided the rural gentleman was a prohibitionist.

"To tell the truth," he parried, "you question puts me in an embarrassing position. But to be frank about it, I'm dry."

"Well, then, I can't vote for you," the farmer decided, and he returned the card.

"No, no, you don't understand me," Mr. Hughes appealed. "I'm dry; I'm thirsty."

So they went into the farmhouse.

Our solution of the traffic situation met a favorable response from motorists, who are not interested in laws, but we were put in our place by Mr. McIntyre, the new traffic engineer. We wrote that Mr. McIntyre might as well put on his hat and depart, for we had solved the dilemma—simply allow right turns on red lights. Well, our irenchant pen so aroused the traffic engineer that he has hurled at us a state law which forbids such turns. What's more, Mr. McIntyre seems to be in sympathy with this law because it protects the pedestrian. In a polite letter, Mr. McIntyre asks us not to be discouraged and to make as many suggestions as we like. The only suggestion which comes to mind right now is that Mr. McIntyre take off his hat again.

MISS HARD-BOILED by JANE DIXON

MISS HARD-BOILED

Raquel Flees From Home On Mexican Border

CHAPTER I.

It was dark. So dark that Raquel Rojos, drawn well back in a seat toward the rear of the car, was no more than a blur in the general gloom of the train.

She was glad for the darkness. Glad for the haze of alkali dust that hung like a curtain between her and the idly curious eyes of fellow passengers. Cattlemen, with hunched shoulders and gay knotted 'kerchiefs that belied the dreary routine of their trade. Two or three traveling salesmen, the urban stamp on their easy-fitting clothes and polished shoes. No women.

Yes, the curtain of dust and dusk hung there providentially. These men, wits dulled, senses logged by sleep, did not notice her. In itself an omen of good report. Men always noticed Raquel. And remembered her. These men would not remember, this train only goes as far as Phoenix, Ariz."

The girl laughed. A smothered contralto laugh that invited him subtly to join in it.

"Phoenix will do very well—for a beginning," she said. And began rummaging in her blouse

"REMEMBER, YOU ARE TO WAIT FOR ME—"

She wrapped her cloak of rusty black close around her and drew still further into the seat. Her cheek nestled against the fur of her collar. The fur was soft and silken and caressing. Not so long ago it had been a young mountain-cat, stalking in hidden places, furtive, waiting for the moment when it could give expression to its lion heart. Even as she had stalked, hidden and waiting.

A hand was on her shoulder.

"Ticket, lady?"

Long Journey

Thinks of Going to End of World

She had expected this. It was time the lion purred. She raised her face from the collar, but did not change her position in the seat.

"How far does this train go?" she asked.

"The conductor was a man. As such, to Raquel, fair game. He reacted instantly, as she knew he would, to her intent. His round blue eyes, watery and chronically reddened by alkali dust, stared, then wavered under the brilliancy of her smile.

"How far is it you was thinkin' of goin'?" he wanted to know, his brain muddled by a combination of the girl's question and her smile.

His round eyes widened to their limits. Something seemed to brush across the face of the girl like a hand. A hand that wiped away the hard brilliancy of her, leaving in its place a steady glow. The sparkling glow of fire on ice.

"I was thinking of going to the end of the world," she said.

Her black eyes regarded him quizzically. The bold curve of her red lips bit into the pallor of her face. Her teeth, blue-white, glistening, and of an almost mechanical regularity, were pressed together.

The conductor thought of a mountain-lion cub once left behind by a passenger. It was more than her coat which brought this back to him. He had undertaken to make a house pet of the cub. The most he had been able to coax from it was a reluctant compromise with bondage.

He pushed a battered blue cap back from his gritty brow, scratched his head with blunt thumb and forefinger.

"To the end of the world, huh?" he said. "Sorry, lady, but for what the conductor supposed would be a rectangular piece of white pasteboard. Instead, she drew out a roll of bills. The outer one, he saw, was in three figures and yellow.

"I was in such a hurry to start where I'm going," she told him. "I didn't even stop to buy a ticket."

She unwrapped the outer bill and extended it to him with a quick slim hand.

"I can't change this, lady," he said. For all his conductorial barking at other passengers, with the girl he was patient, almost apologetic.

"I'm so sorry," she said. Her black eyes were at once appealing and commanding. "I haven't anything smaller."

Unaccountably to himself, quite understandably to the girl, the conductor held out the bill. It fluttered down into her lap.

"Mebbe I can pick up the change before we git to the end o' the line," he said.

Father a Bandit

Firing Squad Awaits Him in Mexico

The girl nodded, wrapped the bill around the roll in her hand, returned it to her blouse. The conductor had passed on, still worrying the back of his head with blunt thumb and forefinger. She was safe for the present. So far, it had been too easy. Men. She would have preferred to sharpen her wits on this big booby of a conductor.

The fur caressed her cheek again, soft and silken.

MALONE BACKER FIGHTS TO KEEP JOB

Clifford, City Engineer, Fired by Clark, Appeals To Civil Service Board

Joseph M. Clifford, of 741 Bryn Mawr road, Fifth Ward, assistant engineer in the bureau of building inspection and political ally of former President of Council James F. Malone, today appealed to the Civil Service Commission from his discharge yesterday by Safety Director James M. Clark.

His dismissal followed denials he made to charges of "tardiness in reporting for duty and insubordination."

Director Clark, in announcing the removal of Clifford, said of his denial of the charges:

"It is the weakest thing I ever heard of."

SPOILERS POLICY

In political circles, Clifford's dismissal was looked upon as a logical result of Mayor Charles H. Kline's expressed policy—"to the victor belongs the spoils."

Clifford had been suspended five days by Director Clark, who said in a letter that unless Clifford gave satisfactory reply to charges made against him, he would be discharged in accordance with civil service rules.

Included in the charges against Clifford were accusations of neglect of duty in failing to comply with instructions from superiors and not keeping the filing system up to date, and absence without leave on Monday, July 7.

CHARGES "FRAMEUP"

Clifford, in his reply to Clark, explained he was absent on July 7 because it was the last day of his annual two-weeks vacation. He declared that his discharge was inspired by Harry Feldman, a city assessor and Mayor Kline's patronage dispenser in the Fifth Ward.

The real reason for the discharge, he averred, is Feldman's desire to make a place for a friend, Louis A. Schwartz, whom Director Clark is about to remove from the job of assistant clerk in the Safety Department, according to Clifford.

"Feldman met me a few days ago just outside the Mayor's office and told me that I had better resign, as I was unfaithful to him politically, was no good to him, and that he would have me discharged."

SHIPPERS HERE GET RATE CUT

Pittsburgh, which now pays the same rate of 106.5 cents per 100 pounds as Buffalo, N. Y., for first class shipments to Norfolk, Richmond and other Virginia points, will have a benefit of a 17-cent differential over Buffalo on the same shipments, as a result of a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the eastern class rate case.

Donald O. Moore, chairman of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce traffic division, said yesterday that Pittsburgh shippers after November 1, of this year, will pay 101 cents per pound while Buffalo will pay 118. And Pittsburgh will have a 12-cent differential benefit over Rochester, N. Y., on the same shipments.

Not only did Pittsburgh benefit on Virginia shipments, Moore said, but the decision will have a differential of value in shipments to St. Louis and Southern Illinois.

CAN A ROAD GO THROUGH A BUILDING?

ROUTE (DOTTED LINES) OF 60-FOOT ALLEGHENY BOULEVARD AT NADINE PUMP STATION

When the Allegheny boulevard gets to this point, Pennsylvania Water Pumping Station, it has no right-of-way and there isn't enough room to squeeze it between the building, difficult to move or reconstruct, and the railroad tracks. An "engineering monstrosity," said County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, who's insistent that the error will cost a lot of tax money.

SEES COSTLY ERROR TO RECTIFY

Pumping Station Directly in Way; Brown Would Have P. R. R. Move Its Tracks

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern has hinted that a mistake made by county engineers in laying out the extension of the Allegheny River boulevard, from Washington boulevard eastward, will cost the taxpayers a vast sum and result in an engineering monstrosity.

McGovern said at a commissioners' meeting yesterday that the boulevard appears to have been laid out in such a way that the pumping station of the Pennsylvania Water Company at Nadine is in the middle of the roadway.

STATION IN WAY

He declared the roadway has been completed to one side of the pumping station and the contractor has moved his equipment to the opposite side. The only way the two sections could be connected, he said, would be by climbing over the top of the pumping station," as the building, due to the location and types of machinery, abutting the walls, cannot be moved intact or reconstructed.

The only engineering solution to the problem that would keep the connecting link on the same grade as the surface sections would be a "horseshoe" curve around the end of the pumping station, McGovern averred.

BROWN EXPLAINS

Director Norman F. Brown, of the Allegheny County Department of Public Works, informed McGovern that the problem can be solved by having the Pennsylvania Railroad Company shift its main tracks closer to the river and allow the connecting link of the boulevard to flare around the end of the pumping station.

Brown declared the county's plan for that treatment has been submitted for the approval of the railroad company and the Public Service Commission and can be executed with the $132,000 originally set up in the estimate for property damage.

AMEN CORNER PICNIC TODAY

A program of baseball games and track events was arranged for the annual picnic of the Amen Corner today on Indian Mound, McKees Rocks, according to Charles R. Geisler, general chairman.

Responses from leaders in the political and business activities of Allegheny County to invitations indicate the out-door affair will rival the Amen Corner's annual dinner.

J. F. O'Toole, of the transportation committee, has suggested the following route for motorists: Leave the Triangle by the Point Bridge to West Carson street, cross bridge over Chartiers Creek to McKees Rocks and follow Amen Corner arrows to Indian Mound.

Police Shelter Boy Barred by Mother

His mother still too angry to permit him to return home, Mike Simon, 11, of 900 Ridge avenue, McKeesport, today was at the Juvenile Detention rooms.

His father, Steve Simon, 42, was fined $200 and costs or 30 days in jail Monday after Mike, picked up by police Sunday, said he had become intoxicated by imbibing liquor at home. Later a raid disclosed a still, police said.

Since then, the boy's mother has refused him admittance at home.

Marriage License Bargain Sought, Bride Demurs

HARRISBURG, July 16.—(AP.)—Daniel M. Speaks, 34, of Steelton, hesitated about paying $2.50 for a marriage license which he said could be obtained for 98 cents in Hagerstown, Md. He and his intended bride, Miss Ida McKinney, 32, also of Steelton, had answered all the questions at the marriage license bureau when the clerk asked for the usual fee.

Speaks called attention to the difference in rates, declined to pay the higher amount and escorted his fiancee from the office.

He returned a few minutes later and asked for the license, proffering the $2.50.

"Did you change your mind?" asked the clerk.

WOMAN ROUTS 2 BURGLARS

Squirrel Hill police today were seeking two men who became frightened and fled when a woman detected them attempting to rob her home yesterday.

The two, about 45, broke the front window of the home of Mrs. John Fizel, at 2601 Beechwood boulevard, and were about to ransack the house when Mrs. Fizel, who was on the second floor, ran downstairs. One of the men, police said, ordered her to remain quiet and pointed a revolver at her. Instead of obeying the command, Mrs. Fizel screamed and the pair fled. They made their escape in a coupe which bore Ohio license plates.

Goodwill Employes Hold Picnic at Farm

800 BUILDERS HOLD PICNIC

More than 800 members of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange and their guests attended the annual outing yesterday at the Willows, Oakmont. The program was brought to a close last night with a dinner dance.

In the afternoon the building supply dealers triumphed over the general contractors in a baseball game, 18 to 6. A program of races and water sports was enjoyed. A yacht of the McCrady-Rodgers Company was at the service of the builders and made numerous trips on the Allegheny River.

The committee in charge of the outing included C. A. Powell, chairman; Israel Raphael, William Rodgers and E. Harper Singer.

BENTLEYVILLE WANTS TAXIS

Bentleyville and its environs with a population of about 6,000 want a taxicab service and Dominic Scicohitano has applied to the Public Service Commission for a certificate of operation.

Scicohitano has been driving one of his father's buses in the territory and will run the taxicab business himself, establishing his office in his father's store, where 'Squire Scicohitano holds forth. There was a time when the elder Scicohitano had much opposition in the bus business, but he eliminated that by obtaining a certificate from the Public Service Commission. Numerous residents of the Bentleyville territory appeared before Examiner W. E. Best and told of the need of the taxi service.

Horse Thieves So Rare, Suspect Thought Insane

Attempts at horse-thieving are so rare in Allegheny County that Constable William Johnson, of O'Hara Township, was holding a suspect in the Sharpsburg Police Station for mental examination by a physician today. The constable's prisoner said he was Benjamin Robertson, 18, of Cleveland, O.

Robertson was captured in his stocking feet near Sander's Inn after Johnson had been telephoned that a youth was attempting to steal a horse from the barn of a nearby resident. When placed under arrest, Robertson had halters in his possession, police said.

A police dog set upon Robertson during his alleged attempt, police said, inflicting a painful wound.

Officers to Get Second Traffic Control Lesson

Pittsburgh traffic officers will get the second of a series of traffic instructions tomorrow when they are addressed by Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education section of the Better Traffic Committee. The talk will be delivered when the officers report at roll call in the City-County Building and talk will be accompanied by the distribution of the second set of instruction cards.

The second instruction card states that pedestrians have the right of way at controlled intersections on the green or go light or any other signal over all turning vehicles. Turning automobiles are violating the law if they don't give pedestrians a chance to cross the streets safely.

The improvement of the wharves for parking has been made a definite part of the committee's traffic betterment program, Frank L. Duggan, chairman said today. A good portion of the wharfs are now used for parking but the committee hopes to utilize a larger portion and to have it ready if parking is eliminated downtown entirely.

Charles S. Cunningham, yesterday was appointed traffic planner for the committee, starting a new branch of research in street development work. His work will be largely that of making studies of bad traffic situations in the city.

STREET DETOUR BARRIER HITS CHILDREN

Victims Taken to Hospital; Patrolman Run Down by Motorcycle, Driver Held

Two girls were in hospitals today from injuries suffered when they were struck by a street barrier erected to detour traffic in the Boulevard of the Allies at Craft avenue last night.

The victims, Marcella Tracey, 12, of 14 Marie street, and Margaret Barrett, 13, of 2616 Forbes street, were injured when the barrier was knocked down upon them by two automobiles which collided. Marcella was taken to Magee Hospital and the other girl to Mercy Hospital.

WOMAN INJURED

The barrier upset after automobiles driven, police said, by Fire Captain Theodore J. Hunkele, 46, of 3139 Kelvin street, attached to No. 12 Engine Company, and Charles Barten, 26, of Allenport, Pa., collided.

Mrs. Mary Braden, 65, of 7811 Susquehanna street, sustained body bruises and lacerations of the head when struck by an automobile driven, police say, by William Goudy, 21, of Allegheny avenue, at Frankstown and Blackadore avenues. Mrs. Braden was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

PATROLMAN HURT

When a motorcycle on which he was riding was struck by a truck at Craig and Forbes streets, Patrolman Martin O'Toole, suffered bruises and was taken to Mercy Hospital. James Thomas, 29, a Negro, of 3320 Ruthven street, was arrested as the driver, police reported.

F. J. Skelton, of 713 Arch street, was arrested after an automobile he was driving struck E. S. Hirsch, 52, of 346 Melwood street, at Center avenue and Melwood street, it was reported.

Hirsch was treated at the Homeopathic Hospital for a laceration of the right leg.

North Side police shortly after midnight arrested Leo L. McNerny, 24, of 1121 Marvista street, on a charge of reckless driving after his automobile collided with a parked car and injured Florence Delray, 21, of 1144 East Ohio street, in front the girl's home. Anthony Ciorro, of 20 Orthan street, sitting in the car with her, was uninjured.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question—Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, is reputed to receive a salary of $1,600,000 a year. Can any man really be worth that much money to his employer?

MRS. FANNY SOLOMON, saleswoman, East End—Any man who is dependable and trustworthy ought to be worth that much or more. And the man who gets that much is worth it, because employers seldom overrate the value of their men.

Mrs. Solomon

ARTHUR MORRISON, newsboy, Mt. Washington—No he can't be worth that much. That's too much money for one man any time, whether he works hard or not.

Arthur Morrison

MRS. LOTTIE NEWMAN, dress fitter, Homewood—Employers don't pay for what they don't get. I admire the man who is capable of making that much money and I admire the employer who values a man that highly.

Mrs. Newman

MRS. A. M. WILSON, milliner, East End—A man has to make more than that to be worth that large a salary and so when he does make more than that then I think he's worth every bit of that money.

Mrs. Wilson

JOSEPH NATALI, court interpreter, Squirrel Hill—A man that can make himself worth that much money by his application to business and his efforts for the firm should certainly receive it.

Joseph Natali

MRS. DON BESTOR, Pittsburgh—Most men making that salary have worked in one line of business for a long time. And to become thoroughly acquainted with a business from long association with it should make a man worth that much.

Mrs. Don Bestor

TRAINMEN SUE BROTHERHOOD

Eleven employes of the Panhandle Division, Pennsylvania Railroad, late yesterday filed an injunction suit in Federal Court against the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen to restrain that body from putting in effect a decision of the brotherhood's board of appeal, made June 11.

The rule is held discriminatory and against the interests of some 300 men employed in what is known as the Carnegie-Scully seniority district.

Attorney Van A. Barrickman took the papers to Judge W. H. S. Thomson, who serves only in emergencies, at Cambridge Springs. He signed a rule calling on the brotherhood to show cause why an injunction should not be granted. Meantime, conditions are to remain as at present. No date for a hearing has been set.

Barrickman charged that "politics" in the organization was responsible for the rule, and said that the railroaders would lose their jobs if such an order was upheld.

Retroactive seniority rights between the men in the Dennison, Steubenville-Wierton and Scully yard runs have been in force many years. Thirty-eight per cent of work was given conductors and brakemen on the Pittsburgh district run to Dennison.

SIGNS TO CARRY SAFETY PLEAS

More than 200 billboards stressing safety and the dangers of reckless driving will be erected throughout the Pittsburgh district during the next 12 months by the Pittsburgh Motor Club, it was announced today.

Prominent gasoline stations and other spots on traffic lanes have been selected as sites for the signs. A new poster will be placed on each board monthly for the duration of the year's safety campaign drive, C. H. Roth, secretary of the motor club said.

To stress child safety education, Roth said, the club will attempt to place the billboards as close as possible to schools.

The motor club safety committee has also announced a campaign to extend work of the Better Traffic Committee in child education work to Allegheny and four neighboring counties. Cooperation of school boards, superintendents and civic service organizations will be obtained to help finance the work.

ASK BUS ROUTE EXTENSION

As an accommodation to between 1,500 and 2,000 persons living along the upper Monroeville road, Patton Township, McCoy Bros., who operate a bus line in the vicinity, have asked the Public Service Commission for permission to extend the service.

It was agreed before Examiner W. E. Best by the applicants that they would not accept passengers which would conflict with the rights of the McKeesport Transport Company. This means that passengers will not be accepted between the intersection of Monroeville road and Oak street, Turtle Creek. The extended line will enable the firm to accept passengers between the intersection of Braddock and Electric avenues in East Pittsburgh and the intersection of the upper and lower Monroeville roads.

McCoy Bros. also have applied for permission to extend their route to West Wilmerding in the hauling of passengers between that point and Turtle Creek and East Pittsburgh.

Both piers will be on the shore and the center span will be 725 feet wide. There will be a 40-foot roadway with two sidewalks.

FORGED NAMES STRICKEN OFF PADDED LIST

Commission to Eliminate Those Enrolled Through Orders Signed by Others

The Registration Commission has decided to strike from the books the names of voters who registered on tax receipts obtained on orders not signed by them.

The decision was made at a hearing granted yesterday to attorneys for the bar association's election fraud committee, that alleged five specific brands of irregularities in the registration of residents of the Third Ward. One voter of the five appeared for the hearing.

JUDGE GRAY'S RULING

The first charge of irregularity was appealed to Judge James H. Gray, who ruled some time ago that the commission should strike from the books the names of voters who voted on tax receipts obtained on forged orders.

The Bar Association attorneys asked the commission yesterday to summon 15 voters for a hearing next Friday on charges of registrations on improper affidavits concerning residence, age and inability to write. Summons were requested also for the registrars of the Fourth District of the Third Ward.

ORDER UPHELD

T. E. Kilgallon, attorney for the commission, gave an opinion on a hypothetical question to the effect that a voter could register on a tax receipt obtained by an order signed by himself despite the fact that one or more orders have been issued without the voters authorization.

The hearing yesterday was attended by all members of the commission, W. A. Means, J. Scott Morgan, James P. Kirk and T. A. Joyce. The Bar Association was represented by Attorneys Donald C. Anderson, C. A. Jones and R. B. Greer.

RECOUNT BOARD CALLED TOO EXPENSIVE

County Commissioners Seek Way to Have Recheck Of Ballots Stopped

County commissioners again have held up an appropriation of $10,000 in addition to $10,000 previously provided, to pay salaries of the recount board that is checking allegations of fraud in certain ballots cast in the recent primary election.

The board consists of three members at $20 a day each and 23 clerks at $10 a day. Attorney Leander Trautman, chairman of the board, presented a request for the fund at a commissioners' meeting last week and County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich was asked whether the board could be discontinued.

WILL COST $50,000

Commissioner C. C. McGovern declared the results did not appear to justify the expense of the board which Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong estimated would total $50,000.

Dithrich replied yesterday that a state law compelled the appointment of the recount board by a presiding judge of Common Pleas Court when proper petitions alleging fraud were presented by qualified electors.

He declared the recounting of boxes brought in to date could be discontinued only if the electors who alleged fraud and petitioned for the recount would ask the court to vacate the order.

APPROPRIATION HELD UP

McGovern observed there should be some county official, such as the county solicitor or the district attorney, who would take the initative in investigating credible reports that numerous signers to petitions for the recount have since admitted they did not know they were asking to have boxes brought in and had no suspicion that fraud had been committed.

Dithrich replied he would hesitate to appear befofe the court with such a proposal in the conviction that his action would be considered "presumptious."

The request for the appropriation was held over for further study.

CHILDREN WANT LOST DOG BACK

"Betty Girl" is gone. A whole Sewickley neighborhood mourns.

"Betty Girl," a prize toy Boston bull, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Wharton, of 748 McDonald street, went for her usual morning run early last Sunday and failed to return. Hundreds of times before she had done the same thing. But never had she crossed the curbstone that separates the Wharton property from the open road—unless with her master's permission.

Last Saturday night "Betty Girl" was warded first prize at the annual Greensburg dog show. Last and this year she won first prize at the Sewickley exhibits. The Wharton children were exalted. And why shouldn't they, for wasn't "Betty Girl" a fine pet as well as a prize winner?

Little June Wharton sobs:

"We want 'Betty' back. We all love her. I do hope she returns soon."

To this outburst were added the sobs of the children next door.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Can a Girl With a Past Stage a Comeback?

Peter fell for a girl with a scarlet past ... wanted to forgive her for her sins and marry her.

"Don't do it!" chorused Pa and Ma and Uncle Samuel and Aunt Hetty. "You're a goofy-hatted sap!" insisted all his friends. "She will two time you sure as death and taxes! Drop her and keep outta trouble!"

But Peter didn't agree. He was convinced that the girl he loved really wanted to live on the square. Finally the argument grew so hot that Peter appealed to me.

And we took it to mean that if she did p aved to him that she wanted to live right ... that she loved him and wanted to be a regular gal ... go ahead. That there was no reason why a woman couldn't reform as well as a man.

Now here's Andrew with says we're all wet. He married a Bright Light, Betty ... and what she did to him was plenty.

"Tell Peter to keep away from that girl he wants to throw himself away on!" he shouts. "No woman like her is worth the powder to blow her up. Once bad always bad."

Do you believe he's right? Here's his tale of woe and I'd admit it's pretty.

"Dear Sally: What do you mean telling Peter to go ahead and marry that hussy whose got him all hopped up with the idea that she'll quit her running around and be true to him? Usually I think you give good answers but you're certainly off on this one.

"How do I know? I know because I fell for one of those hot mammas myself. I thought she was just a poor abused little girl who'd got herself mixed up with a lotta no-goods she wanted to get away from ... and I was goofy enough to try to take her out of it all. Oh, I was great for this 'reform stuff.' And I believed her when she said she loved me. What a sap I turned out to be!

"Well, to make a long story short, we got married. And she swore that her old life was all behind her. That she'd cut out the booze parties and the stepping around. But did she? I'll say she didn't. There wasn't excitement enough about living with one man. And she had to have excitement.

"I gave her a good home ... plenty of good clothes and her own bank account. And for a while I thought I was happy. But not for long. I found out that she was as fond of booze as ever. We couldn't go to a party but what she got stiff. She refused to look after the house, even though she had a maid to do the hard work and a cook to take care of getting meals. She began going out by herself and would get hard-boiled if I said anything about it. And sometimes she wouldn't come home till way in the night.

Then she got sick and we found she was going to have a baby. So she stayed home for a while. I hoped and prayed that the baby would change her ... that she'd love it and want to care for it like a normal mother would. But as soon as she could leave bed she began going out again. I often think that lately she'd let me I was too slow if I asked her to go out with me.

"This went on for a couple of years with her [illegible] and her [illegible] and the baby left to a [illegible] take care of. And a sweeter baby you never saw, either. Pretty as a picture. And bright. But her mother couldn't see her. Oh, if she did take care of her at all, she was apt to get in a rage and slap her. And when I happened on her for it she would fly into a rage at me. She'd curse me and swear and tell me that she wouldn't mind what she ever was to me that made her want to take up with me anyway.

"I started out with a lot of big ideas about being magnanimous and forgiving and giving the girl a chance. I fell for this old fuzzy about helping 'em come back. And what did I get for it? Three years of first class misery.

"I only stood it for that long because I was hoping against hope that she would get next to herself and change. But my only reward for that was that I found she was stepping out on the sly with a rich old boob old enough to be her father.

"When that happened I gave her the gate. I knew then that there was no use bothering with that kind of woman any longer. When a woman goes wrong it does something to her that can't be cured. A man can step around and slop when he wants to, but stepping around destroys something in a woman. She can't come back ever. She's been marked for life.

"So here I am, with a lot of shattered illusions and a little wisdom gained ... and my little daughter to raise alone. So I say to Peter: Back out while there's time, old fellow. Don't let yourself be gyped by this woman like I did. Take a tip from one who knows. It won't work. If a woman's once bad, she's always bad."

"ANDREW R."

I'll admit that it's a terrible story, Andrew. But I must disagree with your statement that all women "once bad" are always bad. Your wife was a pretty poisonous character and no mistake. But there are women who have "come back." I've known them.

It's perfectly true that you can't trust every bad woman to straighten up and live on the square. But you can't trust every bad man to either.

And how about that, Gang? What's your opinion?

THE LOVE DANCE

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

He could wish with the poet that the girl he loved was a wave of the sea, that never is still, when he watches her dance—if it wasn't that she is dancing on his poor heart. Her name is Delphine, and she dances like a dream.

She has cost him a great deal of money, for a fellow who repairs cars in a small-town garage. All his spare and saved paper and silver, in fact.

She has hair like a dark colleen—that is to say, black as the most moonless night. And her eyes match, except that they have a light in them like a flickering candle. She has arms like sprays of apple blossoms and they sway up and down, with the little flickering fingers on the ends of them doing graceful and dainty things in the air. Her feet touch the earth like a dipping swallow on the surface of a pond. She has a little waist, allowed to be seen in the fluff of rosy dawn, that she calls a modern evening frock. The frock is as frail as a cloud—and blows about in the wind when she flies in circles, hiding and revealing perfect little statuette legs. Her smile! Oh, her smile. It makes him faint. She has often turned its radiance full upon him, slaying him for a week—so far as the other folk who know him can see—for he acts totally unconscious and like a robot doing his work.

A beautiful girl in lovely plumage who dances like a dream and whose name is Delphine, and who dances upon his heart until it's broken a'most. And he spends a lot of money upon her.

You see, he does not know her, except over the footlights, and "seats"—even one—are very expensive these days!

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Diet Indiscretions in Summer Bring Trouble

Most of our maladies and health troubles are due to faulty diet. In the summer time indiscretions in eating and drinking are causes for a great deal of trouble.

DR. COPELAND

One such disturbance is inflammation of the inside lining of the intestines, called "enteritis." Most forms of enteritis are of the catarrhal type. In simple language this means that there is such an irritation of the mucous membrane of the bowel as to result in an increased flow of mucous. It is just as much of a catarrhal condition as a head cold where there is a marked increase in the flow of mucous from the nose.

Any part of the intestinal tract may be involved in a catarrhal inflammation. When there is disturbance of any one location it is apt to involve the entire membrane lining.

The very common cause of enteritis with children especially is the taking of improper food. It may be produced by overeating and with most people the eating of unripe fruit may bring it on.

Many of us find that some particular food will cause diarrhea the reason being that that particular food acts as a poison to the intestinal tract. Spoiled milk, strong coffee and plums are foodstuffs which irritate some persons.

In young children and infants the cause is usually found in the quality of the milk. Older children who overeat ice cream, candy, pastry or soda drinks are very apt to be troubled in this way. Or any person who eats bad meat, unclean food or becomes infected by contaminated food handlers may have an attack of diarrhea.

In a pronounced case of enteritis there may be severe pain. A colicky pain is quite common where the cause is taking the wrong kind of food. There may be a slight amount of fever and great thirst, and so the tongue may be dry and coated. If the diarrhea continues for some time there will be prostration and a sense of illness. It is always wise to consult a doctor in such cases.

Nervous influenza plays a great part in this condition, too. After stage fright or other similar emotions there may be marked diarrhea.

Typhoid fever, tuberculosis, pneumonia and other infections are accompanied by diarrhea. But as a rule, it is a passing disturbance, due to some dietetic error.

If diarrhea occurs in the case of a child the milk should be stopped at once. Many mothers, especially new mothers, are afraid their babies may starve to death if the milk is stopped. It is far better to give the child nothing but water for a day or two. So long as the temperature continues your doctor will probably advise against food and it is good advice.

Colic may be relieved by hot moist compresses to the abdomen or a hot-water bottle or a hot tub bath. Frequent enemas will help.

It is a good thing to go to bed and reduce the diet. Many adults suffer from chronic diarrhea or from enteritis. In such cases there is an underlying cause and that must be found by your doctor.

Mary Joins the 'Greens' Expedition

That Mary was in the grip of some emotion which was shaking her self-control almost to the breaking point was patent both to Katherine and me. But fortunately both of us are used to dealing with emergencies, and neither in our faces or voices did we betray any surprise at her agitated request to go with me on the trip after Christmas greens, adding that she should "stifle" if she "stayed in this house another minute."

"I'd love to have you go, Mary," I told her promptly.

"And don't hurry back," Katherine supplemented. "Noel is much better this morning—didn't I tell you, Madge, that the racket those boys made was just what he needed to get a healthy mad on—and I'm going to get him up and around a bit today. It's time now to let up on the coddling and have him stand on his own feet for a change. So—" she shot a quick, smiling glance at Mary—"I'm going to give my assistant nurse a day off. Hurry up and get on your things—and—don't bother to say good-by to Noel. I'll tell him you've gone."

"But, why?" Mary began.

"Why?" Katherine repeated softly with a grin at me. "Perhaps I want Noel to get another healthy mad on."

"Yo, mean?" I whis red back.

"That both he and Mary are letting those mysterious letters—or something else unknown to me—run away with their nerves," she said. "If you can get Mary to talk today, listen with all your ears, and tell me about it, unless she swears you to secrecy. I don't know but I should want you to break your oath at that. I do want to find out what's depressing Noel so."

"I feel low enough for anything," I said with a grimace, but had no chance for explanations, even if I had wished to make them, for the boys came rushing back from the closet where Katherine had sent them for their caps and coats.

"Can't we start right away," Mother?" Junior panted, tugging at buttons. "I'm afraid somebody else will get there first."

"There are plenty of bushes for everybody where we are going," I told him. "We must wait for Mary."

"Aw, gee!"

"Mary will be ready by the time you get the things in the car," I told them. "Run out and ask Jim to drive around to this door."

They raced out of the door, and Katherine turned to me.

"I might have had the car here," she said apologetically, "but—"

"But you knew there'd be no holding the lads once it was at the door," I said. "Don't spoil a perfect bit of stage management with an apology. Ah, Mary!" as Dicky's young niece ran down the stairs, lovely in spite of her oldest and heaviest clothing, "you've wasted no time."

"Oh, I'm a quick change," she said flippantly. "I'll need to be now that stage costumes, reflecting the fashions, are getting longer and wider. Where are the kids?"

"Getting into the car, where we ought to be," I told her, having made sure by telephone that Sam would be at home, and in less than two minutes we were turning in the Tiger gate. Jerry promptly carried the small boys off to look at the result of his father's latest horse trade, and with laughing apology Mary followed them while Mrs. Tiger hospitably bustled me into the house.

"Sam'll be here in a minute," she said, "but for the land's sake, what's the matter with Mary? I never saw her look so peaked. Her eyes look awful, and she's thin as a rail. Are you sure she hain't sickening for something?"

The Marry-Go-Round

Woman's Poker Face

"Why does a woman close her eyes when she is being kissed?"

This question is puzzling a group of male students in an Eastern institution of learning, and they have put it up to me.

Easy to answer. A woman closes her eyes when a man kisses her as naturally and instinctively as a racketeer reaches for his pocket at the sound of a padded footstep, or as a wild deer shies at the sight of a hunter.

She closes her eyes, automatically and subconsciously, in order to veil her thoughts and emotions from a man. That is the primordial feminine instinct, nurtured by many generations of sad experience.

Half the average woman's life is spent in "closing her eyes" and pretending not to know or see things. From the time she wakes up to the true quality of the masculine nature, she is continually trying to hide her thoughts, feelings, reactions and responses.

Because she knows that as soon as a man finds out all about her he will not be interested to find out any MORE.

If she lets him know that she loves him, it will either frighten him or bore him. And if she lets him know that she doesn't love him it will either hurt his vanity or stab his self-esteem. So she closes her eyes—and keeps him guessing.

She is afraid to let him know that his kisses thrill her, for fear that it will make him conceited. And she is afraid to let him know that they don't particularly thrill her, for fear of making him sore.

She conceals the fact that she intends to marry him, for fear that it will scare him and make him run away. And she conceals the fact that she DOESN'T intend to marry him, for fear that it will make him run the other way.

Before marriage, she closes her eyes to his flirtations or his poor dancing or his bad taste in neckties, or his shyness or his conceit or his gaucherie—or whatever happens to be his failing.

And, after marriage she closes her eyes to his laziness or his grouchiness or his untidyness or his unreasonableness and conceals her real opinion of him, even from herself. She dares not tell him how proud she is to have married such a "wonder," for fear it may spoil him. And she dares not tell him how disappointed she is to have drawn such a blank, for fear it may dishearten him.

A woman would just LOVE to be frank and open and straightforward with a man; but she knows that her only chance to win in the love game is to play it with a poker face. Because it isn't what he KNOWS about her that interests him; it's what he DOESN'T know and is trying to find out.

That is why a woman unconsciously closes her eyes at the first kiss and tries to KEEP them closed until the last kiss!

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

Arizona desert ceased to exist. In its stead was a golden roach, skimming along on winged wheels, drawn by galloping white horses with plumes on their heads.

Past midnight.

A little while now she thought and the town of Hermosa back there in the dark would be stirring uneasily under the flaying whip of dawn. Mumbling and stumbling toward another day. A day drab and brackish like all the other hundreds of days toward which it mumbled and stumbled.

Curls of smoke would be mounting listlessly from shambling adobe huts, yellow-pink in the racing dawn. Drabbled women would be slapping tortillas, fodder for ill-tempered men and spindly children who would bolt them gluttonously.

In one such hut, most shambling of the lot, there would be wonder, consternation, violent oaths that ripped through the open door, rattled the cracked crockery on the crazy table sent the family cowering to cover.

Pancho Rojos, her father, would discover that she, Raquel, had eluded him. Slipped out from under his heavy hand as neatly as he slipped from the hand of the law, which long ago, she now knew, should have sent him to prison. Called himself a revolutionist. Fancy name for a bandit. Francisco Rojos, Spanish gentleman by birth. Pancho Rojos, Mexican bandit by reason of drink and a contract with the devil. If they ever laid hands on Pancho across the border in Mexico, a wall, a firing squad. They wouldn't wait for sunrise. He had escaped them once. Some day they would get him. On one of those mine-raiding plundering expeditions he was forever plotting with greasy expatriates. Peons!

Lucy—her tragic American mother. Oh, well.

"The woman is a fool." Her lips framed the thought. "To slave—to whine to—that great brute of a Pancho."

Young Emilio, her brother?

"Guzzler! Another tortilla and he will forget me."

Younger Rosita, her sister?

"A lump! Simpering at boys."

Frail Jose, with the dreams in his eyes. Her baby. Her baby brother. Her throat tightened. Her eyes were misty. She closed them to shut out the thought of little Jose.

When she opened them again the mist was gone. A dervish dance was going on behind their black velvet. Transparent velvet at this moment, because there was no one to peer in through the windows of her soul.

She was picturing the expression on the face of Bill Johnson, the man she had promised to marry, when he found she had disappeared. Big blundering Bill, with his slow speech and his elephantine attempts at love-making. To Bill she was a fractious filly which once bridled could be made to go through its paces. When Bill learned she had kicked her way out of his corral.

Raquel's white teeth caught at her under lip. She must not laugh aloud. She would attract attention.

Jack Farrell. What was Jack doing now? she wondered. Wanting her, yes—as she wanted him? He seemed so close, so real, that she might easily reach out and touch him.

Touch his lean brown cheeks with the hollows in them. Run her fingers along the waves of his hair, crisp and thick, like fine copper wire. Reach on tiptoe for the kiss he must bend his head to take. Lean brown, laughing brown, Jack Farrell.

Farrell had not laughed though when he had lifted her to her horse, watched her ride out into the night. His hands hurt her. His lips clung.

"Remember, Raquita mia, you are to wait for me—"

The golden coach with the winged wheels in which Raquel had been riding jolted to a stop. She was back on the rattletrap train again. A fresh cloud of alkali dust puffed in at the far end of the car. The conductor had returned. He was coming toward her, along the aisle.

Cause of Foot Trouble

Ill-fitting shoes are responsible for flat-foot. Flat-footers don't walk properly, they come down first on the heel, instead of on the ball of the foot. Any discomfort in one's pedals should have attention from a specialist; foot ills seldom cure themselves, and often the whole trouble can be corrected by proper shoeing and better posture.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A Confusing Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My niece came over to invite my mother to her wedding ceremony and to her bridal supper. I, her aunt, live with my mother and was in the same room when she invited my mother. I would like to know if it is proper for me to go to church to the ceremony? I think that it is not, for I am her aunt, and if she had wanted me to attend, she would have asked if I were going to attend. She did not say a word to me about the wedding, and we have not had any misunderstanding. Please let me know whether it is proper to go, as I feel that she does not want me. From her mother's side, none of her uncles or aunts were invited to the ceremony.

MRS. F. J.

To interpret this invitation of non-invitation would be, I believe, too much for an outsider to do. Apparently your niece has had to limit her invitations, or at least she did limit them. And I believe that if she had meant to invite you, she would have made her invitation perfectly clear. Especially since you were in the room when she extended her invitation to your mother.

Checking One's Wraps

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would be very much pleased if you would tell me who should pay for the checking if a girl asks a boy to her high school dance? If the girl pays, should she give the money to the boy? If not, what is the correct thing for her to do? S. S.

Since the checkrooms for wraps are usually separate, the girl gives the fee for her checking and the boy gives the fee for his checking.

A Corsage for the Widow-Bride

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for a widow to have a bouquet of flowers when getting married in church? If so, what kind? M. L. J.

It is better form for her to wear a costume with which a corsage bouquet is more appropriate. For instance, a shoulder bouquet, of one or two orchids or two or three gardenias, or a few small roses.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, July 17

Although this day is forecast as a lively one, with many stirring activities, yet it is not without its annoyances, doubts and sinister complications. It will require patience, determination and precaution against treachery and open attack in order to rout adverse conditions, which are a menace to success, finances and to personal peace of mind. Shun speculation and be not misled by visionary schemes or hypocritical advances.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active and enterprising year, in which their own perseverance, alertness and judicious use of funds may be the main factor of success. There is an element of fraud, hypocrisy and financial peril to be cautiously manipulated, but the mentality may be shrewd and dependable. Domestic, social or affectional matters may prove intriguing or mysterious.

A child born on this day should be resourceful and enterprising, and should wrest its success from many visionary, subtle or strategic situations.

What Has Gone Before.

A particularly atrocious murder is discovered in a private room in a speakeasy. There is not a single clue to the identities of either the victim or the criminal except the victim's cap marked S S Delta. The S S. Delta had foundered some days before in mid-Atlantic with every soul on board. Robin Dale's story of the crime in the Daily Journal brings forward a Mrs. Robertson who identifies the victim as Harry Gibbs, her brother. She admits he was a steward on the Delta and implicated with a diamond-smuggling gang headed by a mysterious Wallace.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III.

A few days passed before there were any further developments in what became known as "The Gibbs Mystery." Jardin's journey that day with Mrs. Robertson had, of course, a premeditated reason. He had met Mr. Robertson, discovered that they were in a very neat, furnished apartment on Madison avenue, and made other casual observations, a matter of record.

Robin Dale had remained with Capt. Blake after all the others had gone. He learned that Blake would immediately cable Scotland Yard for all the information available on Florrie Robertson and her husband, Phillip Robertson. A second cable was to be sent to the home office of the Blue Crescent Line for information concerning Harry Gibbs.

The reply from the steamship company arrived first. It stated that Harry Gibbs had been in the employ of the company over three years, always as steward on the Delta. There was no record (which would not have been made until the liner arrived in England) of Gibbs' absence from the boat and the company had considered him among those missing.

Three days passed before Scotland Yard answered. Their reply was splendid in its detail. The important facts were these: The Robertsons lived in one of the suburbs of London. Phillip Robertson had a small shop in which he manufactured a special grade machine oil, and traveled extensively about the provinces in the interests of his business. A few months before an uncle in Canada had left him an estate which accounted for his presence in New York. Robertson's assistant, one Anthony Druid, had been left in charge of the manufactory, and had rewarded his master's trust by neglecting the business and taking a holiday.

In view of the death of Harry Gibbs, a British subject, Scotland Yard was sending one of its 'operatives, Inspector Albert Graham, to lend whatever assistance he could. If further information was desired the Yard was at the service of Captain Blake.

Robin Dale read the cable message in Blake's office.

"Things begin to look up, Captain."

"What do you make out of it?"

"There's the first inkling of a motive . . . . an estate to be inherited."

"Yes, that struck me immediately, but I wasn't able to fit it in as a motive. Mrs. Robertson's husband inherits some money and her brother is murdered . . . the two don't go together."

"Not with the information now in your possession, captain. But one can't disregard a thing which is as tangible a motive as money."

"About the rest of that cable: I don't suppose it devolves upon us to notify Robertson that his assistant, that Druid fellow, is taking advantage of the situation."

"Just a suggestion, Captain Blake, but I wouldn't overlook anything. I have a strange feeling that we haven't heard the last horrible detail of the case. That murder was staged with perfect detail, so perfect that after a week there is not a single tangible clue to go on. If anything else happens it will be done with the same precision, with every detail as carefully laid out and as void of clue or motive."

"I think for once, Dale, you're taking this too seriously."

"I hope so . . . if it turns out that I am there's going to be a little vacation for this scribbler with nothing more mysterious about it than the proper way to land a trout."

Captain Blake was laughing at Dale when the ring of the telepone bell arrested them sharply.

"Hello . . . yes this is Captain Blake . . . What?" He listened for a long moment. Then he spoke sharply and hung up. "I'll be there at once!"

"It was Robertson . . ." this to Dale. "Had some sort of a warning and is scared pretty well out of his wits. Come along?"

When Capt. Blake and Robin Dale arrived at the Madison avenue apartment they found Robertson and his wife in a very nervous and worried state. Almost immediately Robertson handed an envelope, already opened, to the detective. He read it and passed it to Dale. It was brief, each letter printed.

"Gibbs was just an example. Partnership in that estate is the only thing that will save you. If you object your wife will be another example. After that—YOU. W."

"You'll have to give us protection, sir—we demand it!"

"Of course . . . . " Blake was studying the envelope. "It was mailed at Station D, that's within two blocks of this house. Tell me, Robertson, do you know what this signature means?"

Robertson was standing with his arm about his wife. She was clinging close to him. It was as though they were striving to find strength in their closeness. She answered the question.

"Phillip knows no more about it than I—even less. It can't be anyone but that Wallace! I don't want anything to happen to Phillip—I couldn't stand any more!" There was no question but that Phillip was all that mattered to her.

"If we may request it, sir, would you have one of your officers stand guard at this house until we are prepared to leave? It will be only a few days as the solicitors state all matters will be settled tomorrow."

"I'll arrange it that way Mr. Robertson. By the way, it may be of interest to you to know that your Mr. Druid is badly neglecting affairs connected with your business."

"It makes no difference now, sir, we've practically decided not to return to England. My uncle's estate was considerably larger than I anticipated—over forty thousand pounds — and I'm going to Canada to manage affairs myself. Druid is welcome to that other."

That very night Captain Blake placed a detective outside the Madison Avenue house.

When Babies CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue, won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine. It always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

SPORT COMMENT

by HARRY KECK, SPORTS EDITOR

New Bobby Jones
Looks Like Horton Smith
Or Perhaps Don Moe

Dog Racing Ends.
May be Back.
New Ring Star.

HE'S HARRY HARRIS, A GRITTY CUSS.

(NOTE—James J. Lomz is on vacation. During his absence this column is being conducted by the sports editor.)

WITH BOBBY JONES now that he is afflicted with victories and has no more worlds to conquer, talking about retiring from the frivolous pastime of cutting didoes at the expense of the best professionals in the sport to whom are we to turn in our search for his successor?

Not that anyone wants to push Bobby out of the picture, but it is just as well to look ahead and be prepared to recognize the new Big Guy of Golfdom when he arrives.

Horton Smith.

OUR tip-off is that it will be none other than Horton Smith, the 22-year-old Missourian, who has been making headlines for the newspapers ever since he first flashed across the horizon a few years ago. He finished third to Bobby in the Open at Interlachen, after leading the field for a time, and his work in other tournaments both at home and abroad has stamped him as one of the gentlemen of the game.

There will be one main difference between the immortal Bobby Jones and the up-and-coming young Horton Smith and that lies in the fact that Bobby is an amateur and Horton is a professional. There's a wide gulf there, but real wizardry and mastery on the links will be hailed regardless of the classification of the player.

IF IT ISN'T Horton Smith who is to be elected to adorn the seat on the throne when Bobby steps down, how about Don Moe, the young Western amateur champion as a candidate from the ranks of the amateurs? There's a kid with a lot of natural stuff and a world of promise.

THE DOG RACING fever is at an end, but the memory lingers on. With New Kensington and Bridgeville closed down and the new Cuyasuta track at Aspinwall forced to call a halt to its sport, the fad that spread like wildfire through the prairies of this section has come to an untimely end and the folks who liked to "get a run for their money," whether it was from ponies or dogs or what not, are back where they started, either playing the handbooks on the horses or just simply waiting around for some other excitement to sneak up on them.

Both Bridgeville and New Kensington plan to stage return meetings in the fall. Cuyasuta's plans are indefinite. The promoters of this plant got a bad break in that they were stopped before they even had a chance to get their heavy investment back. The two other tracks ran long meetings and fared well. The opposition to them was not strong; in fact, Bridgeville had virtually none.

THE CHANCES ARE that in view of legal entanglements a new system of betting will be introduced when the dogs return if they do in the fall. It is a system that has passed the muster of state supreme courts in a number of commonwealths where the pari-mutuel betting is not allowed as in Pennsylvania. It is a stock-selling proposition whereby each ticket bought on a dog represents a share of stock in the track.

The winners are paid off at posted odds, while all of the unplaced tickets are bought back for a small nominal sum, their value having depreciated with the running of the race.

THE LATEST SENSATION in the local boxing realm is Harry Harris, the heavy middleweight of Bellaire O. who has beaten Harry Williams, local Negro light-heavyweight, and knocked out Nick Polis, of Aliquippa, in two recent starts at the Meyers Bowl. The fellow is cast in the mold of the budding Gene Tunney. He bears a striking facial resemblance to the former heavyweight champion and has the same general physical proportions, especially with regard to his big shoulders and thick waist line. In action, the deadly parallel continues, for, like Tunney, Harris is a counter puncher and a dangerous hitter. His jab packs the same weight as Tunney's and is not merely a push. If Gene ever saw the youngster in action he would think he was looking at a filming of himself in his early days. Harris might easily be a brother of the erstwhile Fighting Marine, and I am sure that if Gene ever sees him perform he will take at least a brotherly interest in him.

LIKE GENE, TOO, Harris is a cool and thinking boxer. He

SUN-TELEGRAPH NET TOURNEY ADVANCES

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Fast races and hammy weather signed a triumphal net counterclockwise in several action yesterday with results that before nightfall sounded the curtain in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph festival of the Pittsburgh public parks tennis championships had accounted for no less than 59 victories and left-footing in all of the six parks wherein play is being sponsored had penetrated to part at least to the quarter-final round and in several cases even into the semi-finals. Conditions were perfect for the thinning and full advantage of the fact was taken as enthusiastic galleries skirted the sidelines and aspirants for honors toiled far into the dimness of late twilight.

Both rectangles and defaulters ax were kept busy throughout afternoon and evening. Entrants failing to appear for matches were perforce dropped from the lists as the brackets pressed rapidly forward, so that henceforth only those interested to the extent of adhering properly to schedule will be found in the competition.

MACZKO ADVANCES

Nick Maczko, true dark horse, featured the Schenley program by rousing out Zola Alpert speedy Pitt basketball ace and third seeded luminary of the golf links lot, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4. Alpert had earlier romped through Sam Singer with loss of but one game but against the cagy and consistent Maczko his confidence broke he lost great measure of pace and accuracy and went to the board as outstanding upset of the session was registered and Maczko led the procession into the Schenley quarter-finals there to be joined by another unknown, J. M. Kane, who fought decisively through Joe Jones, 6-4, 6-2, in round three to attain the coveted group of eight.

Irvin Goodman, Pitt flash and first seeded satellite, breezed through Andrew Lippay and Norman Solow in impressive fashion and will next encounter Harry Wald, a fellow Panther, whose clever forehand is counted upon to furnish Goodie with formidable opposition. Alex Blumberger seeded second and likewise a Pittite, met with an unexpectedly stiff customer in Gene Solow, who took him to 7-5, 6-1 ere Alex prevailed while Sammy Braemer, seeded number four, had a warm seance with Herb Lewis, but came through, 6-4, 6-4.

Women's cavorting was again confined to the Schenley precinct with the going light. Flo Schneider, seeded third, scored handily over Helen Mason, 6-0, 6-1, to enter the semi-finals, but the top favorite, Jeannette Miller, was down a set, 8-6, to Dorothy Albert when darkness halted the proceedings.

REACH SEMI-FINALS

Riverview turned in a big evening with all man-to-man survivors reaching the semi-final frame. Jack Herrmann, giant Shady Side Academy stylist, packed too much heavy artillery for either Bob Callen or Emil Stankey, the latter being a Carnegie Tech performer who boasts pretty strokes but scant control. Robert Meyer, seeded at two, once more lived up to notices by chopping out a brace of love sets over Bob McClurkin and thus achieving the penultimate notch. Along with Herrmann and Meyer in the semi-finals are Pat Moran, three-set conqueror of Bill Strothman, and Louis Buran, who edged past in a protracted fray with Howard Kleeb, 10-8, 6-4.

Rodney Snodgrass and Leo O'Neill headed the parade into the Olympia quarter-finals, the former by dint of speedy 6-2, 6-1 victory over Richard Hunt and the latter through default of little Eddie Ferrick, who had earlier forged on through the withdrawal of Elmer Artzberger. Mt. Lebanon mainstay, whose adjudged status as a club player automatically

Buchanan, Boxer, Dies After Knockout

DAYTON, Ky., July 16.—(AP.) Sammy Buchanan, Waycross, Ga., welterweight, who was knocked out in the seventh round of his bout with Jimmy Neal, Cincinnati, Monday night, died early today. Hospital attendants said they were uncertain of the cause of his death, although at first he appeared to be suffering from a stomach hemorrhage. Campbell County Coroner Walter B. Hughes said he would make a thorough investigation.

Jimmy Neal was to box Maxie Strub at Washington, Pa., last Thursday night, but withdrew from this bout, which would have marked his debut in Western Pennsylvania.

Campus Comment

By KNUTE ROCKNE

Chairman, All-American Board of Football

FOOTBALL, THEN AND NOW.

I was sitting with a group of oldtimers at the Old English House at Poughkeepsie and had to endure quite a bit of good-natured twitting from an oldtimer who played, so he told me, almost 30 years ago. He jabbed me rather deftly with remarks to the effect that modern football was a degenerate mixture of rugby, basketball, pom-pom peeloway and correct social etiquette.

Knute Rockne

But to quote him in person, "Just to give you an idea of how we played the game in my day—I remember the afternoon when we clashed with Old Blank, (He named a well-known Catholic institution of the East), Lowbrow, who coached our centers, had been showing me a trick whereby I kicked the opposing center in the head with my knee. All during the first half I thought I was playing a whale of a game, tackling all over the field. As I came in between halves I thought surely I had earned a few words of praise, but, instead, old Lowbrow had a fit, saying, 'You didn't do it, you didn't do it!'

STARS FORCED OUT

"I said, 'What do you mean, didn't do it?' He said, 'You didn't knee him in the head.' So on the first play in the second half, I threw all my moral training to the winds and kneed the young chap playing opposite me with a well-placed thrust which laid him cold. They carried him off the field on a stretcher, but that was a signal for the fireworks. On the next play, the whole opposing line hit me and played hop-scotch on my carcass. I believe I was the first center who ever played what you call a roving center today, because, on the next down, I moved back six yards, where I could see who the folks were coming at me, after which I could make my appropriate counter-moves, generally in the opposite direction.

"The other team had a halfback named Gilroy who was the fastest thing on the field, and it looked as if he was going to beat us. A substitute guard came out, and, joining our team, carried to me instructions from Lowbrow to 'get' Gilroy. So the next time Gilroy was tackled, I leaped on him with both knees, and he was removed, just blotted out, as it were.

THEM WUZ THE DAYS

"Our opposition began gaining on a great tackle-around play in which a huge 250-pound mountain by the name of Casey came around. He was not stopped on any play for less than five or six yards and our 140 pound end, of course, was absolutely incapable of annoying said anthropoid. Again came a message to "stop" Casey in a tackle-around, so, as he came by the next time, I swung out and wrapped my arm around his neck and started to throw him back on his haunches, but, as I did so, he began chewing at my arm just as if he were eating corn off a cob. I still have the scar on my arm. In the argument that ensued, he accused me of choking the wind out of him. Both of us

BOSTON, July 16.—The Pirates are not exactly a "setup" for left-hand pitchers, yet there are times when a good southpaw makes the Pittsburgh outfit resemble a sandlot organization.

Uncle Robbie of the league-leading Brooklyn club pitched Clark out of turn against the Bucco in order to cash in on the left-hand drive on which the Pittsburgh attack operated yesterday.

Manager Ens has four southpaw swingers in action as a rule, but with Ervin Brame on the mound the number is increased. This array is likely to chase a right-hand flinger to the showers early, but Clark held the Buccos to one lone single and achieved a 5-to-0 triumph.

STRATEGY SOUND

Few of the left-hand batters were able to get a solid wallop at the ball. It was a nice bit of strategy on the part of the rotund leader, who had four or five star right-handers thoroughly rested and awaiting their turn.

Uncle Robbie has another left-hander in the person of Jim Elliott, who is just about as severe on the Pirates as was Clark. Early in the year Jumbo Jim blanked the Pirates in Pittsburgh on two hits. Last Sunday he held the Buccos to four safeties, but he had to bow to Larry French in a 1-to-0 classic.

Many of the managers have been saving their left-handers for the Pirates. The Waner boys are able to solve the southpaw flinging, but the other southpaw batters are often "buffaloed."

TOUGH ON SUHR

All in all, the situation is a tough one for Gus Suhr, southpaw slugger, who is making a bid for major league fame.

Brame held the Robins to eight hits yesterday, but in view of the pitching of Clark, the clever twirling of the tall Kentuckian was wasted. Glenn Wright, former Pirate, once again was the batting star. Glenn came through with a homer, a double and a single and he scored three runs.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

BOSTON, July 16.—Well, folks, I suppose you've counted us out of the pennant stuff. I've just about counted them Robins in. I don't see any club can beat them now that they have an infield working like a charm. Glenn Wright was tellin' our gang yesterday that Mickey Finn is one of the smoothest second basemen he ever saw. Glenn says he's at least as good as Critz on double plays, and maybe better. You all know how Glenn is on them two-way plays, so the Robins are good as any club in baseball around second. And on first they have a star fielder and slugger in Del Bissonette. Wallie Gilbert on third is no Pie Traynor, but he is a smart thirdsacker, and he can hit in the clinches. He drove in the first runs of yesterday's game.

I understand they're gonna turn them away in Brooklyn this afternoon. The Robins was tellin' us that the whole park was sold out before yesterday's game was over. There was a big line of fans waitin' there when we went over to the park to play our game.

There's a lot of good dope goin' around about that game played here Sunday that was stopped by the law. I guess the Braves put on some fancy stuff to try to slow up the action when they had a lead. Rabbit Maranville stood at the plate and fouled off about eight, but when a fella is clever

Gallant Fox May Not Run Saturday

CHICAGO, July 16.—(INS.)—Gallant Fox, champion 3-year-old, may not undergo the big test of his career against older horses in the Arlington Cup Saturday, it was reported today after it was learned that the Fox has been sulking.

Unless the Eastern horse flashed back to his old form today in workouts he will be withdrawn from the $35,000 race, it was announced.

Nick Altrock Says:

DET. OIT, July 16.—If it wasn't for the Red Sox at the bottom of the barrel, the Western clubs of the American League would be in the second division. On paper, the Athletics, Yanks and us should breeze right through. But the games are not played on paper.

Every mid-west town we Eastern tourists step off at is studded with banana peels and like the Nick Altrock battle of Lexington and Concord, the pennant race will be fought on the road.

If our club can only hang onto the A's till we get back to Washington, we can filibuster them there.

STEEL CITY LEAGUE HOLDS SPOTLIGHT TODAY

HALE BATTLES EAST END CARDINALS

By TOM BIRKS.

The Steel City League rather monopolizes the sandlot limelight this evening with a bunch of good-looking ball games.

In the Eastern Section the Hale Club meets its traditional rivals, the East End Cardinals, at the Homewood Playgrounds, the other game in the loop finding the East Liberty Crimsons with the first half title tucked under their belt making the trip to Lawrenceville to meet the St. Elizabeth club.

PENN MEETS ACES

In the Western division Dean Mazzie meets the Fox & C in a South Hills battle, while the Clover Club meets Observatory Civics at Pleasant Valley grounds.

In the Minor League the William Penn club hooks up with the B. S. Aces. The City League only flashes one game, Pleasant Valley meeting the W. O. W. club at Woodman Field, McKees Rocks.

Wednesday is an off night on the local sandlots and the teams seem to be awaiting the heavy schedule of tomorrow.

Friday night is going to be booster night at Pleasant Valley, where the Smilers hang out. Dormont will be the attraction and the officials of the Smilers club are going to give a wrist watch for a gate prize at this league battle.

OUT TO WRECK CHARGES

Pleasant Valley seems to be having a tough time this season. Manager Dunsky claims that other clubs are angling for his players and that the club is continually being wrecked. The Smilers, however, were champions last season, and Dunsky should remember that it is the fad these days to wreck championship teams.

The Raybestos club, first half champion of the Commercial League, will meet Immaculate Heart in the invitation series at Sullivan Field Friday evening. Pat O'Toole will pitch for the Bestos and Lantz will be on the mound for Immaculate Heart.

DORMONT VICTOR

Dormont's 9-7 victory over Homewood-Brushton featured the City League battling last night. Book Shoe defeated the Smilers, 9-4 and J. L. Thomas downed the North Side Civics, 7-1, in other frays in this circuit.

The Dan Heeps won and Verona blanked Reliance, 6-0, in the Greater Pittsburgh League. Pintex nosed out the Beckman Motors, 12-11; Allegheny Collegians tripped Cosletts, 4-3, and

DUNN, RODGERS TO MEET AT 127 POUNDS

By HARRY BECK.
Sports Editor.

Johnny Dunn and Jackie Rodgers will battle at 126 pounds, give or take a pound, when they square off for their fourth meeting in the Meyers Bowl arena, North Braddock, next Monday night.

Rodgers will have little trouble making the weight, but Dunn, a tall and rangy lad, may have to hustle some to get in under the wire. He would prefer to enter the ring at 126 pounds.

With the fans still remembering the vivid details of the third clash of this pair of local rivals, at Motor Square Garden last winter, indications are that the Bowl will hold its largest crowd of the season next Monday. Seldom has a local fistic crowd acted up as the one did the night Rodgers was declared the winner over Dunn. Jackie really had an edge in the bout, but Dunn kept in close and punched matters out with him and sent the crowd in a frenzy. When Jackie failed to turn in his usual knockout, it was at least a moral victory for the cagy Dunn, and the fans wanted him declared the official winner.

DUNN PLEASED

Dunn says there's no one he'd rather fight than Rodgers.

"I know Jackie's every move from having boxed him three times," he said yesterday. "When I boxed him the last time, I was in there with a bad left hand and couldn't use it the way I wanted to. I'll be right this time, though."

Rodgers has his own ideas of how the bout will end.

"Dunn was able to protect himself against most of my punches to the body the last time," he said. "See what happens when I cut loose next Monday night."

Matchmaker Jules Beck has completed the card for Monday night with the signing of Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, and Tug Phillips, of Erie, to box the eight-round semi-final, a return bout. Phillips recently having beaten Smackey at Hickey Park. Tommy Ward, of the South Side, to box Bud Cicerone, formerly of Scranton, now of Braddock, where he is boxing under the management of Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion, and Joe Midway, of New Castle, to oppose Jimmy (Snowflakes) Wright, of Cleveland, in the opener.

Between Rounds

The winner of the Jack Wilson-Mickey Dolomite bout at Hickey Park, Monday, tomorrow night, likely will be matched with Buck McTiernan in the same ring at an early date. Dolomite and McTiernan already have boxed four times with each scoring a knockout in their last two clashes. Wilson and McTiernan have not locked, however.

Jack Townsend, the Negro heavyweight, who meets Ike McFowler, of Johnstown, in the eight-round semi-final at Hickey Park tomorrow night, is a veteran campaigner. He boxed George Godfrey back in 1926 and has met a number of other leading lights and boxed Harry Wills in an exhibition. He is making his home in Pittsburgh for the present and says he is taking the McFowler bout as a stepping stone to a battle with George Parker and other heavies in these parts. Angelo Verginio, of Bellevue, and C. S. Carpenter, of New Kensington, meet in the second bout, and Billy Campbell, of the South Side, and Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, face the opener at Hickey Park.

Midget Wolgast, flyweight champion, meets Ernie Priore, of Chicago, in a ten-little bout of eight rounds that will go on after the 11-round battle between Sammy Mandell and Al Singer at the Yankee Stadium, New York, tomorrow night. Each will receive $1,250 for his efforts, the Glick will draw down $2,750 and Jimmy Bronze, the Argentinian, $2,500 for their 10-round semi-final.

Frankie Wine bosses Tony Marullo at New Orleans next Monday night. Frankie Carreira is in with George Cook in Cleveland, July 28. Billy Jones opposes Tait Cook in Rochester, N. Y., August 4, and Charley Basker of Louisville, hooks Franklin Bowman at Louisville, Friday night.

Dan Billick, of Duquesne, is in strict training and would like to box Bobby Schwartz or any of the other battlers.

Al Becker's next opponent may be Cowboy Dellaca, at the Meyers Bowl. Al remains undefeated so far in his brief professional career.

The Johnny Risko-Tuffy Mooney bout, scheduled for Texas Bowl, Cleveland, tomorrow night, has been postponed until Tuesday night of next week, due to a shoulder injury suffered by Risko while training.

Bobby Buffalo and Tweats Mark box the main bout of a show in the New York Coliseum tonight.

YORK RECALLS PLAYERS.

YORK, Pa., July 16.—(AP.)—President J. H. Schmuck, of the York Club of the New York Pennsylvania League, has announced that the New York Giants will send Jim Tennant, bought from the York Club last season, here on recall for the remainder of the 1930 season, and that Montreal is sending Pitcher Harry Rinkow to York, also on recall, at the end of the schedule. Jim Begley and one of the other pitchers on the York staff will be released when these men report.

Bat Battalino Defends Fight Crown

EAST HARTFORD, Conn., July 16.—(AP.)—Bat Battalino, featherweight champion, successfully defended his title last night by knocking out Ignacio Fernandez, rugged Filipino, in the fifth round of a scheduled 15-round contest. The crowd booed lustily and roared "fake" as the brown-skinned warrior never before knocked out, took the count of 10 in the fifth after going down six times in the second.

The crowd pleaded with Battalino to bring the show to a climax after Fernandez, who knocked the champion down in a previous meeting but lost the decision, went down in the second for counts of five, six, three, three, one and four from blows hardly discernible from the ringside.

They Gave a New Thrill

THAT'S WHY THEY GOT THERE . . SO QUICKLY

LITTLE STORIES OF FAST SUCCESSES

(NUMBER SIX)

MARILYN MILLER

From her grandmother's cellar . . . to Ziegfeld's Roof . . . in just the twinkle of a toe. She really was the "Sally" . . . of the alley called Broadway.

How explain the miracle of Marilyn's success? . . . Nature simply blessed her with a charm all her own.

And that's the only answer to another young star's rise. OLD GOLD made its bow just 4 years ago. In a month it was popular. In a year a headliner. Today it's America's fastest growing cigarette.

Nature again! Sun-drenched heart-leaves from better tobaccos. A new taste-thrill for jaded palates. A new throat-ease and freedom from coughs.

You can "manufacture" an ordinary cigarette . . . or an ordinary actress. But only Nature produces the stars.

GRANDMOTHER'S OLD FURNACEMAN WAS FIRST TO EDUCATE MARILYN MILLER'S FEET. AT THOSE SAME FEET, A FEW YEARS LATER, OLD NEW YORK LAID ITS HEART.

ON MAY 11, 1926, AT NEWPORT, R.I., OLD GOLD BROKE INTO SOCIETY, AND IN LESS THAN A MONTH WAS ONE OF THE FOUR MOST POPULAR BRANDS.

SINGER READY FOR MANDELL BATTLE

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP.)—Al Singer, of the Bronx and Sammy Mandell, king of the light weights, meet in a 10-round title battle at the Yankee stadium tomorrow night.

Still [illegible] evenly apparently the [illegible] of the Shaarey-Schmeling [illegible] New York's fashionable affair. Madison Square Garden is hoping that a last-minute rush will swell the total gate past the $200,000 mark. Frank Bruno, the Garden's general manager, [illegible] tentatively today that the advance sale had exceeded $120,000.

The odds against Singer have shortened to 6 to 5 with the possibility that the bookies will go into the ring at even money. Expert opinion that Mandell has weakened himself by his strenuous battle to get down to 130 pounds is reflected in the shortened odds. Reports are that Sammy still has a pound to [illegible] before he can hope to tip the scales at the class limit.

Singer has had no trouble at all with weight. He is a natural lightweight now and had no need of wasting energy in getting rid of excess avoirdupois. A fast and fairly clever boxer with a heavy punch in his right, Al Singer has won considerable [illegible] of support in the last few days. Against the Mandell of two years ago, the Bronx youngster probably would not be considered a chance. But the experts are confident [illegible] some at any rate—that Sammy has lost much of the speed that enabled him to give Jimmy McLarnin such a trouncing here two years ago.

protested to the referee although I did most of the protesting. Then our captain joined with me, but the referee gave us no argument, even though I showed him all the teeth marks on my biceps, except to say: "Well, next year I suggest you play them on Friday."

Those were the days when men were men and I am looking forward again to the days when football will cease being a molly-coddle running contest and get back to the real rough-and-tumble contest when I played it.

These things may seem semi-humorous when discussed by old-timers 30 years afterwards, but I am afraid Oldtimer is doomed to disappointment if he ever expects it will—at least not with a balance wheel like E. K. Hall on the rules committee.

barred him from the parks tilting Snodgrass earned the right to tangle with Hunt by virtue of dogged 5-7, 6-3, 6-0 triumph over Joe O'Neill, rangy Duke varsity alternate, whose steadiness departed after the initial set.

Another Olympia tussle worthy of note saw Bob Broad emerge from the rear to eliminate F. L. Cope, former junior high school titleholder, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. Both lads drove nicely, but Broad minimized his error total and thereby contrived to pull in in front by the proverbial eyelash. Bob Philpott and Dick Creighton, Duquesne products and seeded entries, slipped onward by way of the default route while Ward Murphy, fourth on the select list continued absent and was dropped in favor of the long-waiting Zaltmiser, later the victim of Hunt.

FRANK BRODA WINS

Frank Broda, Harvard southpaw streak, swirled into the Frick Park netting with rapping love-set success at the expense of Jim Mansmann. In so doing, Broda crashed the semi-finals, for he had previously landed a bye. With him in bracket of four is Paul Elliott, 1926 Pittsburgh Central boys' champion. Elliott had a tough time of it with Joe Rosenbloom. He blew a set one at 6-2, rallied to cop the second by identical tally and was down at 4-5 in the third ere braving to run out the melee. Elliott's difficulty lay in failing into his opponent's slow-but-sure type of game and the lapse came near to costing him dearly. In a lengthy first round engagement, Russel Lesterman, Tartan varsity youth, outstepped the veteran R. F. McAdams, but only by the margin of 6-2, 4-6, 8-6. Lesterman next mingles with Johnny Smeaton, young brother of the famed Duke duo. Andy and Bill, while just below this pair in the quarter-finals "Tuffy" McMillin, former Pitt grid leader, combats young Bill McAdams.

Seeded racqueters struck to the fore at Highland again yesterday. Jack Redmond, bagging the last forkhanded victorious path to win over Arthur Graham, 6-2, 6-3. Redmond, who recently annexed the City High School crown, elected to shine, rather than to drive, but despite the softening of his game thus entailed he was never in trouble. Meanwhile Joe O'Connor, second of the seeded quartet slid afoul of a rough proposition in Joseph Findlan and, not boasting adequate net attack, was forced to travel to 6-4, 6-8, 6-4 before capturing the decision on consistent driving. H. C. Link and Bill Purcell, the remaining seeded tilters, passed the day in idleness, but the dark horses, Dr. James Spencer and R. A. Hicks whirled on once more, losing but one game between them.

NO CONTESTS

West Park, with slim entry list, reported no contest actually played, though Ed Grant defaulted to Bill Esser to ease the latter into the lower semi-final against Karl Beilstein. Ralph Beilstein had already attained the upper semi-final, where he now awaits the issue between Max Jenkins and Joe Kristufek.

Today's card calls for semi-final racqueting for men at Riverview and West, with quarter-finals billed at Highland, Olympia, and Frick, and third round imbroglios at Schenley. Women's semi-finals are slated for West, Olympia, and Frick and quarter-finals grace the Schenley board. This means that, barring delay by ill weather, the West Park tourney will wind up tomorrow, while Friday will see completion of the events at Highland, Olympia, Riverview and Frick and the Schenley finals will be reached by Saturday, all being thereby left clear in ample time for the Inter-Park competitors' first week-end to determine city champions and the destiny of the handsome new Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Challenge Trophies.

Forbes

Edsel Ford Says Unemployment Can be Reduced.

By B. C. FORBES

"It is our policy and one which we will make a greater effort than ever to carry out that we level off the valleys and peaks of our production and endeavor to maintain a steady flow through the twelve months of the year which will enable our employees to benefit from steady employment rather than spotted.

"We have had the good fortune to run rather steadily of late at least since we have started producing the Model A and it is our opinion that most corporations can reduce unemployment to a marked degree provided study is made of the demand for their product covering quality, price and usefulness, and after that a complete understanding of the distribution with an idea of continuous demand rather than seasonal."

President F. B. Pullerton of the National Cash Register Company states:

"I fully agree with you that some definite steps should be taken to solve the unemployment problem, and I feel that the manufacturer is the one who should inaugurate such a plan."

WILL ROGERS declares that his greatest rival is Calvin Coolidge, and Will recites many instances of the ex-President's pawky wit. This I am told, is an authentic Coolidge quip:

Talking with a telephone man, Mr. Coolidge asked whether the telephone business was not approaching the saturation point. Replying in the negative, the telephone man mentioned that there weren't yet as many telephones as there are automobiles in the United States. He thought that would prove a clincher.

Mr. Coolidge's immediate comeback was:

"People can't show off in telephones."

PRESIDENT B. F. AFFLECK, of the Universal Atlas Cement Company, replies to statements recently made in this column by John Lurie that "the great majority of the cement mills are already enjoying unprecedented prosperity," and that the proposed duty of 23 cents per barrel will add an additional $46,000,000 to the "already enormous profits now enjoyed by cement mills."

Mr. Affleck says:

"Mr. Lurie must arrive at $46,000,000 by multiplying 23 cents per barrel by 200,000,000 barrels, but his calculations are erroneous. In the first place, the highest figure of domestic cement production in any year was only 175,000,000 barrels, so that instead of $46,000,000, we get $40,250,000. In the second place, Mr. Lurie himself says that 'the imported product cannot compete in price and is not sold at any inland points' and that 'the market of the importer is entirely limited to the seaboard,' therefore any additional profits to the domestic cement maker must be made on that portion of his business which he ships to seaboard markets, which is estimated at about 15,000,000 barrels, so that the additional profit shrinks again to $3,450,000. This possible additional profit of $3,450,000 is quite different from the figure of $46,000,000 used by Mr. Lurie.

"The published reports of those cement companies whose stocks are listed show declining profits over the last two or three years. There is capacity to produce at least 35 per cent more cement than the country will use, which means 35 per cent of idle capacity."

SUNSHINE this week has penetrated at least a little of the gloom which for weeks enveloped Wall Street.

The plan will be submitted to the corporation commission for an official order but will be put into immediate effectiveness before the commission passes on it.

Radio Output Steady For General Motors

DAYTON, O., July 16.—Production of General Motors Radio Corporation has been running steadily at 750 sets a day, according to R. J. Emmert, president. "Output is expected to continue at this rate during July and August with a step-up probably early in September or the last two weeks in the month," he stated.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 16.—Uneasiness over persistent dry weather in spring crop sections both north and south of the Canadian border led to higher prices early today for wheat. Particular notice was taken of dispatches from Bismarck, N. D., that the condition of wheat in surrounding territory is going back fast, as a result of premature ripening. Starting ¼-⅜c up, wheat afterward reacted somewhat, but then rose higher than before. Corn showed decided strength, opening at ⅜-1⅜c gain, and later holding near to the initial figures. Oats were firm. Provisions advanced.

Much of today's buying of wheat in Chicago was ascribed to a leading speculator. The market met with considerable selling pressure at times today on advances to 92½c for the September delivery. At this tage, reports were current that showers had fallen at various points on the Canadian prairies and noticeable reactions in prices here followed.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Stock Exchange Topics

Bull Fiddle Can't Make Commodities Join Upward Dance

The stock market is having a few fancy steps to the tune of a bull fiddle. But those hard-bitten servants of finance, the commodities, refuse to join the festivities. There isn't much romance in quotations on the head holder raw silk, rubber, leather and scrap steel, but just at present those conservative business men and bankers probably would rather see definite stabilization of these basic raw materials than a 10-point rally in the stock exchange.

For more than a year commodity prices have been going down. They began their decline some time before stocks reached the top, and they have continued to ease during the share market's gyrations since that time. Many elaborate reasons for their performance have been advanced, but the situation boils down to a matter of the disparity between supply and demand, the law that in the last analysis, governs all price movements.

For several months during the prosperity-plus period of a year ago, the security markets failed to pay much attention to the lower drift of commodity prices. It was argued that the buying power of the country had been little impaired and that the business recession would be hardly more than a ripple. However, when trade seized unmistakable notice of its era of deflation, Wall street began to concern itself with quotations on staples as well as shares and came to realize that a situation which was witnessing an almost daily drop in raw materials could hardly be called stable. Nevertheless, the duration of the downward readjustment is in itself regarded as encouraging. Manufacturers, many observers are pointing out, have improved their inventory positions enormously in the last few months, and although hand-to-mouth buying, necessitated by the shrinkage in prices, is still in vogue, it is pointed out that the appearance of a more normal spread between production and consumption will be the signal for important purchases of raw materials.

Seasonal recessions in business have doubtless contributed to the weakness of prices, for this is the time of year when business normally runs light, and its requirements are therefore less. To this familiar situation has been added, of course, the world-wide aftermath of last year's speculative fervors, and the result has been a sharply abnormal dimunition in the demand for staples. Retailers in some lines have cut prices to move goods, a recent instance being the 10 per cent reduction announced by a prominent mail order house.

With the market apparently in the opening stages of a more than average advance, various tactics of bull market days are being brought to light. Among them has been the practice of bullish operators to stage a demonstration in stocks prior to the expiration of rights, on the theory that the stock has been held back because of this additional financing. American Telephone and Telegraph in addition to enjoying the position as a premier investment is within a fortnight of the time when the present offer of rights to subscribe to new stock will expire. It would be within keeping with precedent to see a substantial upturn in price develop before August 1.

Net profit of General Foods Corporation available for dividends for six months ended June 30, is likely to approximate $10,580,000, equal to around $20 per share on the outstanding 5,284,649 shares no-par common. This would compare with $9,848,057, or $1.89 a share on 5,200,076 shares in the like period of 1929.

U. S. Shipyards Gain, World Tonnage Down

WASHINGTON, July 16.—While the United States showed an increase, world construction of merchant vessels showed a decline during the second quarter of 1930 from the first three-month period, according to Lloyds Register of shipping. The total of 3,057,735, while approximately 200,000 less than at the end of March, represented a gain of about the same amount over June 30, 1929. Lloyds reported that United States shipyards showed a gain of 15,000 gross tons, placing it second to Great Britain and displacing Germany, which now ranks third.

Car, Truck, Taxicab Production Down

NEW YORK, July 16.—Preliminary figures for June indicate that from 2,300,000 to $2,350,000 passenger cars, trucks and taxicabs were built in the United States and Canada during the first six months of 1930, a current survey by Standard Statistics Company says. This total represents a decline of about 32 per cent from the 3,413,800 units produced in the like period of 1929, with the June output around 39 per cent smaller than in June last year.

DAILY TRUE STORY

J. Mounteford Billings took a great deal of pride in making the statement that his time was worth a dollar a minute.

On his desk was the sign:

"Be Brief."

When anyone seemed to be merely chatting with him in his office for the sake of conversation, Mr. Billings would point to the sign.

"My time is worth a dollar a minute," he would invariably say.

This impressed a great many people.

Mr. Billings was careful not to make the statement to anyone who meant increased business for him.

One of his acquaintances who played golf with him and knew him fairly well listened to him as he said this:

"How do you make that out, J. M.?" he asked.

"Simple enough. I speak rough. My time is worth a little more than a dollar a minute, but for the sake of round numbers I call it that. I work eight hours a day, six days a week, every week of the year. That's four hundred and eighty minutes a day, six thousand eight hundred and eighty minutes a week, which means a hundred and forty-three thousand and seven hundred minutes a year, get it?"

"Wonderful," his friend admitted. He said it seriously and Mr. Billings never suspected his amusement.

"I clear more than a hundred and fifty thousand every year."

"Wonderful," his friend repeated.

Yet Billings was a pretty good chap. They never called him "Dollar-a-Minute Billings" to his face.

Clever Businessman

He had an immense plant, and a big staff of experts. Machinery was his line—especially mechanical improvements. Now and then he picked up some improvement on some machine or other that looked good to him, and when anything looked good to Billings' experienced eyes, it was good. In these cases he would increase the salary of the chap who figured it out—and patent it in his own name.

"Business be exterminents on my time—I pay him, it's mine," he told his patent attorney who agreed with him.

Of course J. Mounteford Billings never told Jessica that his time was worth a dollar a minute. Jessica would have an amount of his time. She was his only child.

And there were plenty of young men who would instantly agree that it was worth a dollar a minute for the privilege of being in her company.

Gregory Tompkins would have paid $10 a minute to be in her company—if he had it.

Gregory drew down a hundred a week and worked in the so-called experimental room of the Billings plant. He had come there fresh from Tech a few months before and he really thought he was in luck.

Gregory made the brief step from Tech to Harvard to visit a chum. There was some sort of a prom going on and he found himself being introduced to Miss Jessica Billings.

"Papa," she said, "is interested in Tech men."

"This Tech man," Gregory replied instanter, "is interested in your papa's daughter."

"Ooo—and I didn't think Tech men had such lines!"

"It isn't a line," he assured her.

They danced then, even danced some more when some Harvard men hinted broadly that he had better lay off and get back to his own educational bailiwick.

That was the way Gregory Tompkins fell in love—all at once, and a few weeks before he had graduated to say nothing of not being on his financial feet.

So Gregg, as he was popularly known, journeyed away from Tech with his diploma and hied himself straight to the office of J. Mounteford Billings in the outskirts of a distant and much larger city. He sent in a letter from one of the faculty who knew Billings.

"Well, young man, what is it?" Mr. Billings asked when Gregg was ushered into his office.

Fall in Love

"The usual thing, Mr. Billings—I want to become affiliated with some worthwhile concern like yours. I want to specialize in mechanics."

J. Mounteford Billings pointed at his "Be Brief" sign.

"Young man," he said, "my time is worth a dollar a minute. You came for a job. Why not say so and save some of my valuable time."

Gregg smiled at Mr. Billings because he was diplomatic.

"I want a job," he said.

Mr. Billings beamed.

"Bright—you learn quickly—a hint is enough. What branch?"

"Hydraulics."

Mr. Billings spoke into the telephone. A man came up. Gregg was introduced and hired. He would go to work under the supervision of this man in the experimental department.

Gregg thanked him and departed.

For weeks he worked down there. He didn't set the world afire, but he showed knowledge and ability, he gave promise. These were the sort Billings wanted to keep. No telling when his sort would pop in with a device worth big royalties—to Mr. Billings.

Meanwhile Gregg, having the right sort of friends in the city, found little difficulty in meeting Jessica Billings. She was surprised and a bit flattered to learn that he was already working for her father.

They went about quite a lot,

Perfects Device

Gregg was [illegible] Mr. [illegible] Billings' office. He worked [illegible] Billings' [illegible] Gregg was [illegible] Billings' [illegible] Before the mail man had [illegible] with him.

Quite a [illegible] said Gregg and he walked out.

His salary was boosted another twenty-five a week.

Gregg worked harder because four nights a week he worked in his own rooms. He had taken cheaper quarters as he needed money for materials and experimentation.

He and Jessica were still very much in love.

One night J. Mounteford Billings dropped in on his friend Wingate on a matter of club committee work. They were having a little informal party. There was Jessica, dancing with some young chap. That was right. Mr. Billings liked to have Jessica go out and enjoy herself at such places as the Wingate home.

"Humph!" grunted Mr. Billings. He had just discovered that the young man with Jessica was that chap who worked for him who had devised the gadget that was worth a great many thousands a year in royalties.

Billings nodded rather coolly. He didn't approve. He knew his novels and magazine fiction. He knew that poor young employes aspired to the hands of employers' daughters with visions of being taken into the firm.

Meanwhile Gregg worked his four nights a week at home and he perfected something he had in mind before he left Tech. He had his dated Tech drawings to prove it. The model worked. The patent prayer was honest, recommended at Tech, and the thing went through.

It meant a lot of money there was no question about it. A little company was formed on the quiet. It was so important that experts decided any reputable manufacturing concern should be permitted to make the thing, paying a certain royalty to the patent owning company for the privilege of making it.

The immense plant of J. Mounteford Billings began to manufacture it. Billings remarked to his manager that he wished some of their own men had invented this thing.

Gregg moved back to better quarters.

Mr. Billings saw them one Sunday at the exclusive golf club. He didn't like that. Why should Jessica bring for a guest one of her father's employes? He asked Jessica.

Billings Angry

"Oh, Gregg's a member," she said lightly.

This made Mr. Billings more indignant than ever. This young Mr. Tompkins had got in some way just to force himself on Jessica. He'd stop that mighty quick.

On Monday the manager called Gregg, who was fussing with some model parts and was in overalls and somewhat messy.

"The big chief wants you," he said.

Gregory went up to the office.

"Look here, Tompkins, no use to beat about the bush, my time is worth a dollar a minute. You can't force yourself into our social life. You know you can't expect to squeeze into our club and assume the same social plane as me or—or my daughter. After all, you are an employe, getting a hundred and a quarter a week—I hope I have made myself clear. I want to say also—"

"Just a minute, Mr. Billings—I know your time is worth a dollar a minute, and I gave up my time to listen to you—"

"Gave—GAVE your time? Why you impudent—"

"Be brief!" Gregg shouted, pounding the table. "My income now is over three hundred thousand a year—my time is worth TWO dollars a minute. I've always designed here and I'm going to marry Jessica. I hope I have made myself clear?"

"What's this damn nonsense?"

"I invented the Tompkins double lever—on my own time, thanks to your tip. Jessica and I want to be married next month, how about it?"

"Come up to dinner tonight—we'll talk it over. Tell me more about how you hit on that scheme for the double lever." Billings paused and grinned and then added: "If your time isn't too valuable."

Between them they sat there talking and used up nine hundred and sixty dollars' worth of their combined time.

FRISBY SCORES INSOMNIA WILL WAGE WAR FOR SLEEP

Photograph shows terrible conditions brought on by insomnia in larger cities.

Washington Monument,
Washington, D. C.

FRIENDS:

King or Commoner, we all must sleep. But last night, for several hours I failed to drop off. Immediately I was struck with the idea that perhaps millions of men, women and children all over the country were also awake. Such conditions can not long be tolerated.

What I propose is a course of self-help. Every public spirited citizen should place a note book by his bed, and leave the light on after retiring. He will then be able to jot down, during the night, the various things that keep him awake. Forwarded to me, this information will be properly edited, published in book form with illuminating remarks by the author, and sold at popular prices.

After these preliminary steps have been taken, it should be a simple matter to eliminate the annoyances responsible for this great national peril. In the meantime I will be conducting a series of experiments tending to show why I do or, as the case may be, do not sleep. These will doubtless be very interesting.

Yours for a good night's rest,
Horace B. Frisby.

Dear Synthetic Aunt Bella—

We saw you staggering across the intersection last night and we knew you by the way you walked. Where was your old man? How'd you get the red nose, baby?

Your old pals,

Ans.—

I have done many things in my life for which I am unashamed, but never in all my days have I criticized a person because of the peculiarity of his or her walk. A broken down arch, I have found, is a badge of honor—as it shows that the wearer is not content to sit around all day thinking up insulting letters to send to a defenseless young woman, who may have been deserted by the man she pulled out of the gutter 20 years ago and who, for all you know, is suffering from a severe head cold.

A Servile Senate

The United States Senate has subjected itself to legitimate criticism for its timid assertion or rather its cowardly abandonment of its constitutional rights.

The President is also open to legitimate criticism for his arbitrary assumption of senatorial powers and his autocratic refusal to comply with constitutional provisions.

The Senate in the constitutional convention was created the TREATY-MAKING POWER of the United States.

The President is merely a NEGOTIATOR, an intermediary between the representatives of a foreign state and the senators, who are the direct representatives of our federated states.

It is the President's definite duty to submit to the Senate, which is the actual treaty-making power, all the facts in any way relating to his negotiations, so that the Senate may accept or reject the treaty in the full knowledge of all the facts and circumstances relating to his negotiations.

When the Senate tremblingly and cringingly petitions the President to allow it its constitutional RIGHTS, it shows itself incapable of intelligently understanding or independently exercising its constitutional rights and shows itself unworthy of the high powers which the Constitution reposes in it.

Macaulay spoke of the reptile press which crawled on its belly before power and position.

But today the press is free and the politicians are reptile.

It is they who crawl and cringe and decline to be upright and independent, even when they have the constitutional right to be "the greatest deliberative body in the world."

Our House of Lords becomes a house of lackeys and makes itself the object of ridicule and disrespect.

The Hearst papers have patriotically tried to stand by the Senate in its conflict with the executive for the maintenance of its constitutional rights and prerogatives.

But how is it possible to stand by a body which will not stand up?

How is it possible to have respect for a body which HAS NO RESPECT FOR ITSELF?

How is it possible to maintain the dignity of a body which insists on prostrating itself in the mud of self-abasement and self-effacement?

How preserve the rights of a body which is so servilely ready to surrender its own rights and also the liberties of the American people?

If the rights of the people and of the states and of the nation were not at stake, the Hearst papers would remain silent and permit the world's "greatest deliberative body" (God save the mark!) to become the political doormat which it desires to be and, as at present constituted, deserves to be.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Usually the egg, directly after fertilization, has no more than this preliminary ground plan worked out. The only internal organization it possesses consists of graded differences in the distribution of yolk and graded differences in vital activity.

In the frog's egg, for instance, there is one point of high activity at the head end, another on the future dorsal side. The chief activity at this stage is cell division (segmentation), and the faster it goes on the smaller the resulting cells must be.

H. G. Wells

The most interesting fact about the egg at this stage is that it behaves as a single whole and is capable of all sorts of adjustments and regulations.

A newt's egg, for instance, can in this early phase be divided into two by tying a fine hair tight around it, and both halves will reorganize themselves to wholes and each produce a normal animal. If we do not pull the hair quite tight and so leave the two halves connected we obtain partial twining—a two-headed monster. Most human double monsters are due to a similar incomplete accidental division of the segmenting egg. And the converse experiment is also practicable; two segmenting eggs can be put together and made to join and form a single animal.

It is the activity-gradients which tie the whole together at this stage. If we alter them, we alter the proportions of the future embryo. A series of experiments by the American workers, Stockard and Child, have demonstrated this.

By taking segmenting fish or frogs' eggs and immersing them for a short time in various dilute poisons and narcotics, strange monsters can be produced which lack the frontmost parts of the head. When, as often happens, all the region in front of the eyes fails to develop, the two eyes appear united into one at the extreme front end—we have made a cyclops.

The explanation is simple. A high degree of activity is necessary for the elaborate head-region to develop. When the activity is reduced by drugging the egg it is insufficient to perform its task. What develops in the place of the head are those structures which demand a slightly lower level of activity for their formation. We get a fore part confused, deflected and incomplete like the statement of a failing mind.

But if we can cut out the "high-level" organs by flattening the main activity-gradient, we ought to be able to encourage them by steepening it. Some recent experiments seem to indicate that this is so.

Strychnine and caffeine are stimulating drugs, and fish and frog eggs treated with them in early stages grow into embryos with abnormally large heads and abnormally small tail regions.

Another method is to expose segmenting eggs to high temperature at one end, low at the other. When the future head, the region of high activity, is cooled, its activity is depressed and rather small-headed tadpoles are the result, and visa versa. For the present we are confined to animals which lay their eggs free in the water.

This minute study of the developing egg throws suggestive light on the monsters which from time to time appear.

Everybody has heard of the four-legged ducks, of the two-headed snakes, calves and tortoises that crop up at times even upon the best regulated countryside.

These strange freaks, ranging from nearly separated Siamese twins to double-headed and double-tailed creatures, to double bodies in which one individual sprouts parasitically out of the belly of a second, to heartless and brainless and single-eyed embryos—are simply the result of microscopic interference with the invisible activity-gradients of the recently fertilized egg.

Erie Bus Charges Show Need of Reduction Here

The unreasonableness of the 25-cent bus fare charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is made plain by comparison with the rates in Erie, as disclosed in testimony before the Public Service Commission yesterday. One can ride six miles in Erie for 15 cents, and that is the maximum fare.

The comparison with Erie is a fair one because conditions are similar in a number of respects. The busses are operated by the Erie Coach Company, a subsidiary of the Erie Railways Company, just as the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The bus fare within the city limits of Erie is only 10 cents, the 15-cent rate being for a trip to suburban points. And the Erie Coach Company obviously does not find the business unprofitable, as the case in which these facts came out was an application for permission to extend the company's bus service.

No amount of explanation or excuse will remove the impression that Pittsburghers are being imposed upon in being charged 25 cents for a bus ride of no greater length than can be had in a nearby city for 10 or 15 cents.

A Death From Rabies Suggests Precautions

The death of a Pittsburgh boy from hydrophobia, the result of being bitten by a stray dog, should direct attention to precautionary measures that may be taken to protect people from this agonizing affliction.

The wise plan, when bitten by a dog, is to consult a physician. If there is the slightest ground for suspicion that the animal has rabies, arrangements should be made to take the Pasteur treatment.

But one should not jump to the conclusion that every dog that runs along the street, with tongue out and panting, is mad. The chances are that the dog is merely tortured with thirst and looking for a drink. It is a humane thing these hot summer days to set out drinking water for animals. Now that the saloons with their water troughs for horses have gone it is not so easy for animals to find places to slake their thirst.

The presence of hydrophobia in the city raises the question if it might not be wise to inoculate dogs with preventive serum, as has been done extensively in Connecticut, New Jersey and certain foreign countries.

Pittsburgh Advancing As Aviation Center

Announcement that amphibian airplane service is to be established between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, with intermediate stops at Erie and Conneaut Lake, marks another milestone in Pittsburgh's progress towards becoming a great aviation center. The new line will link the city with an aviation system operating throughout the Great Lakes.

Apparently well authenticated reports are in circulation regarding negotiations by large airplane operating concerns for making Pittsburgh a station on other new air lines. There is talk of a new joint rail and air line to pass through here.

Pittsburgh is admirably situated as an aviation center, being midway between Chicago and New York, Boston and St. Louis, Detroit and Washington, Philadelphia and Cincinnati. Commercial aviation operators are coming to realize this.

Unfortunately the public authorities are lagging while private interests go ahead. The $6,000,000 municipal airport is not being constructed as rapidly as is desirable.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Sir Conan's Will

If Sir Conan Doyle ever sends a cloud-cable from his new office we wish he would tell us what Sherlock Holmes used in that needle.

"Bugs" Baer

Conan always wanted to be remembered more for his psychic capers than for his novels. That's his last wish. We're sorry. We started wishing first.

We would rather read The Hound of the Baskervilles, The Speckled Band and The Sign of the Four than see Conan marching up the avenue in a shower of ticker tape and ectoplasm.

They have carried this psychic business out to the fifth decimal point. If a man can find his other shoe he thinks he is psychic. If a woman can guess a two-minute egg to the second she claims she is the seventh daughter of a seventh weather forecaster.

There are too many people gazing into crystal globes instead of into help wanted columns.

When Alice comes home from Vassar and moons around in the porch hammock everybody in the family is afraid to rattle the dishes in the sink. They know that Alice has gone into one of her trances and will emerge with some very valuable information about the mysterious and the occult.

The mysterious is usually a good-looking life guard named Jake and the occult is always a blonde. But Alice can claim to be psychic and block more traffic than a circus parade. And get away with it.

The real test of spiritualism is a rumble seat in the rain. If you can be psychic there, then we concede there may be something to it.

But we notice around the house that a psychic person always picks out the best chair in the place, takes first swipe at the outside cuts of roast beef and always gets the room with the four windows in it so that she can watch the stars.

It's loafing under a spiritual label. We thrill when somebody tells us in an asthmatic whisper that we will take a journey across dark waters, to beware of a sinister individual and not to sign any important papers without the aid of a pencil or a pen. It's all very exciting and a shiver runs up our backs like a monkey up a trellis.

But, like an upper berth, a day bed, a divan or an army cot, it's just another name for the same old bunk.

We will hear from Sir Conan when Gabriel imitates Rudy Vallee.

THE BODY OF MAN

By Archibald Henderson

The evolution of species is one of the most fascinating of the studies devised by man, because of the infinite richness and variety of its content. The human body, when properly understood, is seen to be a vast storehouse of physiological survivals. The biologist, who knows all forms of life, can point unerringly to innumerable features in the human body of today which have been inherited from primitive ancestors, from lower and vastly simpler forms of life.

According to approved scientific theory, the earliest living things were tiny little bodies, or micro-organisms, of a bacterial nature, let us say. The bacteria were followed by the protozoa, of which the amoeba may be taken as a type. Jelly-like creatures came along, sea anemones; and then came creatures with superficial induration, such as crabs, mollusce, insect, spiders. At last, in Cambrian times came the highly developed creatures of the crab kind, known as trilobites.

Everything must have started from some soft, glutinous, worm-like creature slipping about through the primal ooze. Locked up in these creatures were the germs of a thousand variations; the whole of the physiology, so to speak, of all living species as we find them on the earth; today and of countless other species which have become extinct. As J. M. Tyler imaginatively expresses it: "Even if we are descended from worms they were glorious worms."

Certain forms remained dominant; they persisted without very wide variation for many centuries. Such forms are the crab, the insect, the spider. Whereas they varied their form persisted—even when they had highly articulated systems. The great creative form was the mollusc, certainly in some of its forms. You can trace with utter clearness the line of filiation; fish, amphibian, reptile, mammal—each handing on some precious quality as one of man's inalienable hereditaments.

From the worm, says Ronald Campbell Macfie in "Metanthropos," the human species got its red blood, from the tunicate its backbone, from the fish its camera eye, from the Triton its five fingers, from the duckbilled platypus and the spiny ant-eater its mammary glands, from the kangaroo its nipples, from the hedgehog and anaptomorphid its placenta and its neo-pallium.

The wriggling worm and the placid oyster acquired fins, and hands, and feet, and eventually in a thousand million years a few progressive bacteria were transmogrified into Newtons, and Kelvins, and Shakespeares, and Huxley's and Darwins, which made pleasant feeding for the other bacteria of more conservative tendencies. Five hundred million years ago a Londoner of today might have been a lamprey in the Tethys Sea; three million years ago a salamander in an Gondwana marsh; sixty million years ago a lemur in a forest of Lemuria.

Nietzsche has prefigured a great race in the far future which he terms the Superman. This new superman organism, Nietzsche predicted, would surpass present man as far as present man now surpasses the ape. How rapidly evolution will progress in the future we have no means of knowing. Perhaps we should not be too hasty in generalizations for the future on the basis of the rate of variation in the past. Various forces, influences, cosmic rays, atmospheric and radiation pressures, and other powers we are just beginning to discover, impinge upon us.

All these influences have worked mighty transformations, but perhaps they have already done their evolutionary work. Changes have been at times almost unbelievably slow, at other times singularly rapid. Only the future shall tell what, physiologically, we shall be.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

EACH MAN HAS HIS GOD, AND EACH MAN'S LIFE IS AS HIGH AND AS WIDE AND AS DEEP AS THE GOD HE HAS BUILT FOR HIMSELF.

Over all men and their little, limited gods looms the one boundless, eternal God. No man has seen His face. No man can comprehend the nature of His being. And all men call Him by a different name. But whatever the name or nature of this invisible Presence, this much is sure—it is the source of all life and into Its inscrutable plan is woven the pattern of each separate human life.

But such mystery is too vague and vast for men to understand. They cannot grasp its immensity, nor fit it to their small schemes and desires. So each man builds a god for himself. Out of his longing and fear and conceit and greed, each man builds an ideal that he can worship and serve and trust.

FOR MOST MEN THAT IDEAL IS JUST A LARGER IMAGE OF THEMSELVES. They build their god by their own dimensions. If their idea of heaven is Better Business, their god becomes a tremendous, omnipotent Butter'n' Egg Man. And they proceed to measure all things in life by butter'n' egg values. Other gods and other values mean nothing to them. They cannot understand the poet's god, which is built from the poet's dream of beauty. Nor the soldier's god, which is built from the soldier's dream of courage and adventure. Nor the scientist's god, which is built from the scientist's hunger for truth. Nor the philosopher's god, which is built from the philosopher's love of power and peace. They can only understand a butter'n' egg god who gives his servants good crops yearly and at least six per cent interest on all investments.

And, likewise, women build gods for themselves out of the fire and foolishness of their hearts. I have known women who built gods around kitchen cabinets and preserve jars. And other women who sought god in cabarets. And still others for whom no power or beauty of adventure existed outside their babies' eyes. For love can limit life as surely and terribly as any vice.

Even the atheist who denies God has a god. No man ever worshiped Jehovah or Buddha or Allah or Wall Street more fiercely than the atheist worships his latter conception of Nothingness. If you want a real, red-eyed religious fanatic, one who will work overtime and be crucified for his god, pick yourself an infidel. They have all other whirling dervishes licked!

So each man makes himself a god and, in the making, defines and bounds his own life. FOR IF A CABARET OR A SEAT IN THE EXCHANGE IS HEAVEN TO YOU, THEN A DAISY-STARRED MEADOW WILL CERTAINLY BE HELL.

Why are our lives so limited and frustrated? That's why. We build those limitations, we prepare those frustrations. We make 2x4 gods and, bowing before them, we shut out the endless horizons of the soul.

To the man who has put aside his self-made god and opened his heart to the immensity of Life, beauty is everywhere and power is inexhaustible. And in every experience—in riches or poverty, in sickness or health, in success or disaster—he will find truth and adventure.

HOW BIG IS YOUR GOD? ANSWER THAT, AND YOU'LL TELL THE MEASUREMENT OF YOUR LIFE.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

It's hard to tell these modern daughters where to get off. They got ideas. As to what time in the night they ought to come in from parties, that's a question that ain't ever been settled.

An old-fashioned dad met his daughter at the front door, so he could tell her what he thought right before her young man.

"See here, Ann," he says, "I'll not have this guy bringing you home at three o'clock in the morning."

"All right, Daddy-o," she says. "I'll fire him right now. There's plenty more nice fellows waiting around for a chance."

Text For Today

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.—Psalms, xci: 1.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS.—I drove out this morning for a farewell look at that ancient gray and depressing pile that is the prison of Saint-Lazare, shortly to come down. I once went through it and it became the theme of a recurrent dream from which I always awaken sitting up straight in bed with the horrors.

Its wilderness of echoing corridors and tunnels of haunting silences have played a conspicuous part in the history of Paris. From the inside courtyard creaking tumbrils departed with the doomed for the guillotine during the Revolution. Mme. Caillaux and other celebrated prisoners awaited trials there.

Outside of its sad, dry odor and filth, the most pronounced impression is of its glossy, swollen and beady-eyed rats. They scamper about freely and are so numerous the cats no longer bother them. Cooks in the kitchen, as a mere gesture, kill on an average of 100 a day.

The rats, and I know a person who suggests one of them, are the most playful around dusk in the evening. So much so that new prisoners suffer from a malady known as "mal de six heurres," from which many women are reputed to have gone stark mad. The prison dates from the beginning of the twelfth century, and was once a hospital for lepers. It is now occupied only by women.

It is ruled entirely by nuns, and there are no privileges. At every bunk side there is a peep hole, and unfortunates live a life of whispers. The only light permitted is from the flare of candles. One section is given over to girls under age who are under correction. Some 16 look 40 after a year.

On that memorable July 13, 1789, when famine raged and Paris ran red, the mob broke into St. Lazare and looted the huge stock of food which the Lazarists had stored away. The monks were driven out and the building sacked. Always it has been an eye-sore, and its demolition will not be mourned.

A delightful quality of the French is their unabashed frankness. When a Frenchman dines with his wife or sweetheart he shows her the check and often they total it together. I have often wondered in America why the waiter slips the check to the man so secretly. We peek at the total, gasp, count our money under the table, and are just as secretive about the size of the tip—unless a little bit tight.

At Tour d'Argent, where pressed duck with a heavenly concocted sauce of raw blood has been the piece de resistance since 1852, I was interested in watching an all-French dinner party at a nearby table. There were 14, ranging from a white-bearded doddering Papa in full evening dress to a boy in sailor suit. No cocktails were served, but from the start there was the chirping of the aviary. Only a small amount of diluted table wine was served, and no cordials. It was noticeable, too, none of the ladies smoked.

Tip to gourmets: Try a dinner at Poccardi's, across from the Opera Comique, and save a little room for a plate of their cassata Siciliienne, a variant of the spumoni in Italian cafes in New York. It will trickle a tear down the sturdiest cheek.

This afternoon's pleasantry might be entitled "Fun in a Pedicure Chinois." While one Chinese whittled at an annoying callous, another gave a manicure and still another a face massage. I had a notion to let another launder my shirt during the gaiety if they happen to go in for that sort of thing. Some repairs were being made in the adjoining booth by a Chinese carpenter, and he warbled a reigning chanson of the Paris music-halls in French while he hammered away.

In settling my bill for the Chinese carryings-on I protested over an outrageous charge. I struggled and choked with French expressions of resentment, while every worker came flying out of the various booths to join in the monkey-and-parrot-like excitement. I lost the argument, of course, and departing in utter confusion heard them all join in what sounded to me like a local version of the Old Gray Mare song in deep bass—and with the customary staccato interpolations.

An American beggar, and the only one I have seen in Paris, fidgeted up to a group of us in front of a cafe. His frankness won him a shower of francs. "Gentlemen," he said, "I was nearly scared to death during the war."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Many of those who read these little talks score or compliment the man on the "by" line.

Some write vindictive letters, others plead that criticism be not directed their way so often, while a third class feels that some close friend has told their secrets.

When reading something that angers you, that pictures you true to life, you should be convinced of the necessity of making changes in yourself.

You are not known in an intimate way by the writer.

If your frailties are presented and you are aroused by the fact, you need just the sort of jar you have received.

Many of us think we keep hidden the things we don't want known.

But we can't fool ourselves about ourselves.

We have to live with the fellow inside of us.

When someone gives us a thrust that hits a sensitive spot we should realize that we might get a lot more out of life if we would get rid of the infection.

It cannot be eradicated, it cannot be halted in its course of gradually developing meanness unless we take a hand and make an effort to cure ourselves of bad habits.

Don't blame the writer who presents your faults; blame yourself—you are the one responsible for them.
